Radicalism—Right Kind
Nawanna and Suen Tong
No Big General Strike
A Sub-Gorilla

"The combination of finance and big business is making more radicalism."—Samuel Gompers.

True as gospel, and making radicalism is ONE of the most useful things they do. What this and every country need is more radicalism, of the right, progressive, intelligent kind.

"Finance and big business combined" do other things also. They build industry on a gigantic scale of economical production. That will be useful to everyone in the future, when everyone gets his fair share. That will come some day.

Big business and finance prove every day that competition is unnecessary and wasteful, thus proving that public ownership is perfectly practical. Their huge profits make it possible to develop talent with great rewards. So the world goes ahead more rapidly than it used to go.

Big business and finance build colleges, hospitals, fight disease through scientific foundations—things the people don't yet know enough to do for themselves with their own national resources.

But the BEST thing big business and finance do is to "create more radicalism."

The American public is not easy to teach. It has even got used to taxation without representation—monopolies laying the taxes. But give big business and finance time, and the people will be educated at last. It may take a century or two. But Kepler said, when he announced the laws governing the movements of the planets, that if God could wait six thousand years for the laws to be revealed, he, Kepler, could wait patiently for posterity to acknowledge his work. And we can wait, especially as the earth and men are to last 100 million years more, according to science, and we may come back here.

Restlessness is everywhere. Miss Muriel McCormick, who calls herself Nawanna Micor, has moved into an attic studio, three flights up, in Chicago, with no elevator. Having John D. Rockefeller for a grandfather, she could afford an elevator. But she wants to be independent and make her career as a grand opera singer with no help.

Leaving her, with a respectful bow, you pass on to Peking and make your salaams before the boy Emperor, Suen Tong, also aged eighteen. The Chinese republic has annihilated his job, but allows him four million dollars a year, fine palaces, a "company of wives," his own grandfather for companion, and the super-wise mandarin, Tcheng Paocheng, for tutor.

Suen Tong, not satisfied, wants to cut off his queue, travel in motors, railroad trains and airplanes—no Chinese Emperor ever tried any of the three. And he wants to travel. Tcheng Paocheng says he will kill himself if the Son of Heaven carries out his plan. Suen Tong and Nawanna Micor-McCormick should be brought together and arrange to exchange places for a while—Suen Tong in the Chicago attic, Nawanna in the Peking palace. Both would be interested for a while and both would be cured, temporarily.

No great general strike in reply to the injunction to control shopmen is probable. It would be a general strike against the general public, not against the railroads or courts. Such a strike would suit the railroads, for it could end in only one way. Intelligent workmen know that.

If the men believe they are ill-treated let them show it at the election, only eight weeks off. If you have the general public with you you can do anything with the ballot. If you have NOT, public opinion with you there is NOTHING YOU CAN DO. A general strike, if successful, would mean a hard Winter for all EXCEPT those at whom it aimed. It would NOT be successful, and failure would add to the weakness of union labor.

TO TRY INNES, SAYS ALLEN

'ASSOCIATE COUNSEL OF BLACKMAILERS,' IS CHARGE MADE

Speaking before a large audience in Faneuil Hall today, Attorney General J. Weston Allen attacked Charles H. Innes, Republican boss, as associate counsel for blackmailers and thieves.

He declared Mr. Innes unworthy to hold a high place in the Republican party. He said if elected Governor he would proceed against him as he had against former District Attorneys Pelletier and Tufts.

The Attorney-General charged that Governor Cox is being aided by friends of Pelletier and Tufts, naming Samuel Waxman and David Ackerman as members of the Governor's campaign committee.

The Attorney-General, who followed the example set by the Governor last week, appeared in unaccompanied, also attacked the Suffolk Grand Jury which returned no bills in the case of the Hanover Trust Company.

He said that because of the action of the Grand Jury he was forced to withhold the presentation of any other bank cases before them, and recalled that the same body had indicted him.

Another feature of the Attorney-General's address was the admission that one of the blackmail cases had been outlawed. He added that the bank commissioner had recently requested him to suspend action in the case of the Tremont Trust Company.

"IS NOT WORTHY."

Referring to Mr. Innes, he said:

"Despite the fact that Governor Cox stated that Charles H. Innes has been the friend of Republican Governors and Presidents for twenty years, it came to light last year that he had been associated as counsel in the Mishawum Manor case and with automobile thieves for some time past.

"Innes today is not worthy of continuing the high place he has held in the Republican party.

"He has always been able to deliver his ward to the Republican party and so apparently was entitled to reward.

"I think the time has come when a test should be made, and I do not believe that Innes has the confidence of the people after the Tufts and Pelletier cases.

"Even before I entered public life I had heard considerable criticism of Mr. Innes and his methods. After I entered public life I opposed him, because I did not think a personal political machine a healthy thing for the party.

"If I am chosen in spite of the strong group seeking to retire me to private life, I will go forward in that high office of governorship with what I have hitherto attempted.

"I have opposed and conquered two powerful and sinister influences. First, when I opposed Mr. Tufts, who was more powerful than I was in the beginning, but I prevailed. Again when I opposed Mr. Pelletier, who also was more powerful than I was, but again I prevailed.

"I am now opposing another man who is as great a sinister influence —Mr. Innes.

TO FIGHT INNES.

"I will fight against him and if elected I will endeavor to continue

SOUTH BOSTON VET'S GRAVE DESECRATED

Charges that the grave of an American soldier was desecrated and the flag insulted have been investigated and pronounced true by the Fitzgerald Post, American Legion.

The accuser is Mrs. Frank Mealey of No. 102½ H street, South Boston, who is ill at her home as the result of the alleged desecration and her encounter with John Duggan, caretaker of St. Joseph's Cemetery in West Roxbury.

Mrs. Mealey is the mother of the late Corporal Frederick W. Mealey of the service company of 101st Infantry, Camp Devens, who was killed recently when he fell under the wheels of a mule cart.

DIRT ON GRAVE.

Mrs. Mealey, the mother, and Mrs. Frederick Mealey, the soldier's widow, accompanied by a woman friend, went to the cemetery on Sunday to place some flowers on the grave of the overseas veteran.

There, according to Mrs. Mealey's story, they found the grave covered with dirt, and when they complained to Duggan he is said to have told

JILTED HER SUITOR ON WEDDING DAY

MISS BRENDA BOND

FIANCEE CALLS OFF WEDDING

Bridegroom-to-Be, Jack Smith, Is Spurned on Day of Ceremony

Social circles in Winchester buzzed with speculation today when it was learned that the wedding of Miss Brenda Bond of Hillside avenue, one of the bridesmaids at the Jack Sanborn marriage, to Jack Payne Smith, had been called off.

The ceremony was indefinitely postponed literally at the eleventh hour, after bridesmaids and best men had been selected, bridal gifts received and the future home of the bridal couple prepared.

STILL "GOOD FRIENDS."

The marriage was to have taken place last night in the Unitarian Church at Parkway and Main streets, Winchester, and was to have been one of the social events of the Fall season.

The wedding was cancelled by the bride-to-be.

Mr. Smith today appeared nervous and ill at ease. He finally made this statement:

"Of course I know Jack Sanborn, but what's that got to do with it? There has been no quarrel between Brenda and me. The fact is, she

DYING AFTER FALL IN ELEVATOR WELL

George A. Carpenter, an electrician working in the elevator well on the sixth floor of the Walker Building, Boylston street, fell and was jammed between the elevator and the wall. He was released by fellow workmen and taken to the Haymarket Relief Station. He sustained a fractured spine and multiple injuries. The physicians held out little hope for his life. He lives at No. 107 West street, Hyde Park.

suffered a nervous breakdown and right now she's under the care of physicians, and that's why the wedding was called off. But we plan to be married in three weeks."

Miss Bond denied that she was ill or under the care of physicians, and said that no date had been set for the postponed wedding. Asked for an explanation of the postponement, she said:

"I don't see that it's anybody's business but our own. I refuse to say anything about it."

The 700 guests who had been invited to the wedding and reception received a note from the parents of Miss Bond which read:

"Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Bond regret to announce that the marriage of their daughter Brenda to Mr. John Payne Smith has been postponed."

INVITATIONS RECALLED.

Yesterday announcements were sent to the many invited guests, bridesmaids and best man, that there would be no wedding, and the minister was informed that his services would not be required.

Because of the fact that both the prospective bride and groom were members of Jack Sanborn's set, young Smith having been one of his loun companions, speculation was rife as to whether his ill-fated matrimonial experience had any bearing on the matter.

Miss Bond and Smith have been engaged nearly two years, and both are extremely popular in the younger social set of Winchester. Miss Bond is twenty years old, and recently completed a course in a Boston finishing school, after having graduated from the Winchester High School.

Smith is the son of a Faneuil Hall Market man, wholesale dealer in butter and eggs and is twenty-three years old. He is an active member of the Winchester Boat Club, where he maintains a sailing canoe and ice boat.

For some years young Smith and Jack Sanborn have been more or less inseparable, indulging in many escapades together. Both drove big cars and were lavish spenders in popular resorts in and around Boston.

Nearly two years ago the engagement of Miss Bond and Smith was announced, and about two weeks ago announcements were sent out of the coming marriage to take place September 6.

Mrs. "Bobbie" Blackler, of Church street, Winchester, wife of the prominent Boston dentist, and Mrs. "Bobbie" Reynolds, of the Winchester Chambers, were selected as two of the bridesmaids.

Both are active in Winchester social affairs.

The men in the wedding party included Stephen Mathewson of Cambridge, and John Sayler of Winchester, who recently announced his engagement to Miss Florence Murphy of that town.

Young Smith leased an apartment in Cambridge, where lease going into effect September 1, and a flood of wedding gifts began to pour into it.

Preparations were completed, the florists and caterers engaged, and the guests invited, when the blow fell. The announcements of the calling off of the wedding merely stated that it had been postponed indefinitely.

STORIES OF ESCAPADES

Rumors of all sorts flew about Winchester, where the postponement was the sole topic of conversation in society circles. One rumor had it that the engagement announcements had been sent out without the knowledge or consent of Miss Bond's father, who is said to have been much opposed to young Smith. According to this rumor, Mr. Bond did not learn of the proposed marriage until a short time ago, and immediately took steps to prevent it.

Another and more popular version of the reason why the nuptials were called off, was to the effect that Mrs. Bond received information regarding Smith's escapades with Jack Sanborn.

It is known that a special delivery letter was received at the Bond home a few days ago.

This letter is believed to have described in detail some of the affairs in which young Smith was involved, and to have warned Mrs. Bond to prevent the marriage. At any event, there was no wedding, and the disconsolate Miss Bond has denied herself to all callers, while Smith cannot be found.

Miss Bond is going out tomorrow to find a job for herself.

She so announced to her family at luncheon today, and the announcement means to friends of the family that the marriage is not simply postponed but it definitely cancelled.

Brenda would not discuss her reason for her last minute action, but her mother said that "certain circumstances made the marriage impossible, and it would probably be permanently cancelled."

Grave Desecrated

them he "didn't care a damn for them or the corpse or the flag."

Several persons at the cemetery are said to have witnessed the encounter between the mother and the caretaker.

In her home today, Mrs. Frank Mealey told her story to a Boston American reporter.

"We went to the cemetery to place some flowers on Fred's grave," she said. "When we arrived we found the grave covered with sod and loam that grave-diggers were throwing on it from another grave that was being dug.

"We paid no attention to our complaints, and told us to see the caretaker about it. We sent for him. He kept us waiting an hour before he showed up. When he finally arrived, I asked him why my boy's grave was being used as a depository for dirt, and why the flag had been taken off and thrown on another grave several feet away.

"'Is that what you called me for?' he said. 'What do I care for you, and your boy and the damned flag? I'm busy.'

"When I demanded that my son's grave be cleaned and the flag restored, he said: 'If you don't like the way we planted him, you can take him to hell out of here and throw him somewhere else.'"

Mrs. Mealey became hysterical and was carried away.

Connie Donahue, commander of the Fitzgerald Post, American Legion, said:

"The post has made a special investigation of the reported desecration of the grave of Corporal Fred Mealey, and finds that the statements made by the dead man's brother, Mrs. Catherine Mealey, and his brother, Sergeant Frank Mealey are true.

"The post will take action at once in the matter, and push it to the full extent. We have already notified General Edwards, and we will carry our complaint to the headquarters of the legion and to the V. F. W. Club. General Edwards' staff is already considering the matter."

The dead soldier, who had been at one time an employe of the city of Boston, was a veteran of the V. F. W. in the World War and formerly lived with his bride of eight months at No. 10 Newport street, Dorchester.

John Duggan, the accused caretaker, today denied the allegations of the boy's mother, although admitting that he had words with her after which he spat on the ground, stating "that's all I care about you or any one."

"I explained to the woman," he said, "that the flag was moved as dirt wouldn't be thrown on it by the grave diggers. She told me that she would get politicians after me. I spat on the ground, but no on the grave, and told her that was all I cared about her or what she could do. She was abusive to me."

"I have been employed in this cemetery for thirty years and never had such an accusation lodged against me. I love the flag as much as anyone does. I was drafted myself, although forty-five years old I didn't claim exemption. I had two sons in the army and nine nephews. All of the charges against me are false."

BABY REUNITES BILL HART AND WIFE

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 7.—Winfred Westover Hart, wife of William S. "Bill" Hart, internationally known film star in cowboy roles of the West, has given birth to a son.

But this wasn't the only big event of the day in the Hart menage, for it was quickly followed by the news that the arrival of the baby boy was the herald of a reconciliation between Mr. and Mrs. Hart.

Only last month the Hollywood movie colony atmosphere was still thick with reports that Mrs. Hart intended to bring an action for divorce against her husband. After a separation Mrs. Hart and her mother had moved from Santa Monica to another nearby watering place into seclusion.

DENIES HE'S "WILD MAN."

That Mrs. Hart had consulted her attorney, Milton Cohen, of this city, was known to many friends, but following this it became public that "Two gun Bill" and his bride of less than a year had decided to bury the hatchet and end the discord.

Mr. Hart said that he wished it understood that he never had played a "Wild man's" role at home, no matter what else might be said.

He denied that he had been guilty of cruelty or inhuman acts of violence and characterized such reports as malicious inventions. He said chivalry was as much his part in the domestic circle as on the screen.

The arrival of the baby ended the period of tension, and there was a fervent and happy, if tearsome, scene at the beside of the beautiful Winifred Westover after the nurse had announced, "It's a boy."

FILM STAR AND WIFE FORGET QUARRELS

Threatened divorce action by Mrs. Hart faded when smiling nurse informed "Cowboy of Films" "It's a boy!"

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM S. HART

The movie world was recently grieved at news that beautiful Winifred Westover Hart had left her husband and was planning to seek a divorce. This grief is now completely eclipsed by news of the happy reconciliation of the couple at the cradle of their new born son.

DORCHESTER BOY DROWNED IN PENN.

Thomas Tobin, who would have been twenty-three the fifteenth of this month, and who has lived since his arrival from Ireland, about seven years ago, with his sister, Mrs. M. Coleman, at No. 91 Spencer street, Dorchester, was drowned while bathing in Ford's Pond, Scranton, Pa., where he had gone to study for the priesthood at the Venard Apostolic School.

Tobin was born in County Claire, Ireland, in 1899. When he was six-teen years old he came to this country to get an education. He worked, and spent all his spare time and money in preparing at night schools for his entrance examination to Maryknoll Preparatory School.

This Summer he decided to take the big chance of going to school, and last Tuesday he left for Clark's Summit, Pennsylvania, leg at his rooms ready for occupancy when the school opens on Friday. This morning his sister received a telegram from the Superior at the school telling her of his death.

The parents of the young man are waiting in Ireland to hear of his hoped-for success at school, in his chosen pursuit.

ARREST MAYOR OF GOVERNOR ISLAND

They "brabbed" the Mayor of Governor's Island today. Though Edward C. McGowan had been squatting on the harbor island for fifteen years, no one is safe these days from the hootch-hounds of the law. The Mayor must face the charges of selling three half-pints of liquor, and keeping and exposing liquor for sale.

For some time the harbor police have been receiving complaints that liquor was being sold on Governor's Island. However, every time that the police Guardian or Watchman, came near the island they were spotted by the lookouts armed with binoculars, and everything was serene when the landing was made, not a drop in sight.

But Detectives Patrolmen Garrett, Dugan and Nesky of the headquarters' vice squad tried a new wrinkle. Attired in cast-off clothing they hired a disreputable row boat and went to the island. The lookout, sweeping the harbor with his glasses, gave them never a thought. They landed and each bought, they claim, a half pint of hooch. Then they seized three and a half quarts.

Their hands were covered with blisters when they reached port once more, but they had made their capture, and maybe the "mayor" wasn't sore.

PROBE DEATH LIST OF HERRIN BATTLE

Marion, Ill., Sept. 7.—Correction of conflict in descriptions of the unidentified victims of the Herrin massacre, buried in Potter's Field, and of a discrepancy in the number of the victims will be attempted in today's session of the Grand Jury investigating the Herrin massacre of June 21 and 22 last.

While the records of the undertakers who prepared the bodies of the victims for burial indicate that nineteen non-union men and three union miners met death during the two days, the coroner's record indicates the number to be twenty-three, showing one non-union miner more.

SEIZE BIG STILL IN NEW BEDFORD RAID

New Bedford, Sept. 7.—A raid aimed to break up what police assert is a local bootlegging ring, was made on the home of Lawrence Pelletier, No. 42 Ethel street. Police seized Black and White labels, corks, fake Canadian liquor revenue stamps and other paraphernalia, used to disguise liquor products. A forty gallon still, several dozen empty quart bottles and seventeen gallons of "shine" were confiscated.

against him as I have opposed and fought against the others."

Referring to the fee of Henry F. Hurlburt for services in the Tuttle case, Attorney-General Allen said:

"I never asked for a $15,000 fee for Mr. Hurlburt. I did suggest that his services were worth $15,000 and that he be paid $10,000 or $12,000. The Governor then said he would not endorse a bill for an amount larger than the Attorney-General's salary, so I put in a bill for $8,000."

In regard to the bills giving him permission to call a special session of the grand jury and summon witnesses the Attorney-General said he was informed that these bills were not going through because the Governor opposed them.

"I went to the Governor," he said, "and asked him if it were true.

He quoted the Governor as saying it was true, and that he was opposed because the bills would give divided authority.

The Attorney-General admitted that one blackmail case had been outlawed and that several others would have been if the special Grand Jury had not been called. He added that all would be presented in time to prevent them from being outlawed. He said he had presented the more important cases first and would take up the others as fast as he could.

CHARGES TO DELAY.

Referring to the Governor's charge that he had procrastinated in the cases of the closed banks, the Attorney-General said proceedings were instituted against them in October, 1921, when the Grand Jury reported a no bill against the Hanover Trust Company. He said his office was then busy with the Old Colony Foreign Exchange and Fenzi.

"Upon the close of the Pelletier case I at once caused the case against the Cosmopolitan Trust Company to be presented to a Grand Jury and a true bill was returned. Is my opponent in ignorance of the fact that an officer has been indicted and that a date for his trial has been set?

"Immediately upon the conclusion of the presentation of the evidence against the Cosmopolitan Trust Company, I caused to be presented to the same Grand Jury the evidence in the case against the Hanover Trust Company, for the second time. That Grand Jury, after listening to the evidence in the case, again returned a no-bill, for reasons which seemed to me such that I decided not to present any more bank cases before that Grand Jury. Perhaps the Governor will recall that I was indicted by that Grand Jury.

"The Tremont Trust Company civil cases, involving much of the evidence upon which the bank commissioner relies, have been in charge of Mr. Dodge, who was associated with me in the Pelletier case, and who has been abroad until within the last three weeks.

"Since his return he has been to me with 'the bank commissioner does not with that these cases shall be presented for a short time longer.' That is the reason that nothing has been done in the presentation of those cases.

"But I have arranged with Mr. Dodge, who is familiar with the evidence, that he will co-operate with my department in the further investigation and preparation of those charges which the bank commissioner has submitted to my department.

HITS AT COMMITTEE.

"I said on one occasion that the men who are friends of Mr. Pelletier and men who are friends of Mr. Tufts are opposing me in this campaign, and that they will be with my opponents.

"What better proof of that could there be than when my opponent published his campaign committee, and on that committee was Samuel Waxman, who was mentioned without credit in the testimony in the Charlotte Broad case, and also David Ackerman, of Ackerman & Brummel, who was also mentioned in the Buckley case, where the court found that Ackerman & Brummel represented by Mr. Coakley, had figured in relations with Mr. Buckley, and Mr. Coakley was found guilty of bringing criminal prosecution in order to compel a relinquishment of a civil suit by Mr. Buckley.

"So that on this committee are two of the men who were represented by Mr. Coakley in proceedings against Mr. Pelletier. These are facts, and if anyone says that they are insinuations, I ask them frankly why have not those names been withdrawn; why have they not been repudiated? Because, today, they stand as members on the campaign committee of my opponent."

IZZY EINSTEIN COWERS R. I. BARKEEPER

Providence, Sept. 7.—Izzy Einstein and his trusty deputy, Moe Smith, renewed their attack on the bootleggers of Providence today, beginning at 6 a. m.

They received for their pains a loud and concerted razz.

Using an engraved summons and a large gat, Izzie opened his campaign today, after having raided twenty-five places yesterday, with a visit to the Westminster restaurant, located at No. 44 Westminster street, in the heart of the city.

Accompanied by the ever-present Moe and two other deputies, American's most famous hootch-hound entered the place and asked for a drink.

The man behind the bar grinned owlishly and replied:

HE KNEW IZZY.

"Can't serve you, Izzy!"

Infuriated because of the ready recognition, Izzy leaped over the bar and grabbed the bartender by the throat. The man had a bottle in his hand. Izzy whipped out his gun and shoved it against the bartender's nose.

"If you drop that bottle," he said, "my trigger finger's gonna slip."

The man held onto the bottle for dear life. Izzy took it away from him. It contained half a pint of booze. Izzy and his deputies departed, leaving a neat little notice, which read as follows:

"You are hereby requested to appear before United States Commissioner Archibald C. Mettison, No. 415 Woolworth Building, New York, September 8, 1922, at 10 a. m.

LEAVES 15 CARDS.

Fifteen such cards were left by the indefatigable Izzy before 10 o'clock. In no case was a search warrant used.

Attorneys for the raided individuals handed them comfort in large doses. They recalled the charge to a Grand Jury some time ago by Judge Arthur L. Brown of the United States District Court for Rhode Island who declared that the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead act were unconstitutional. Judge Brown in his charge to the Jury said that when no search warrant was produced and read to the proprietor of a suspected place before a raid occurred, the raid was illegal.

USES DISGUISES.

As a result over a hundred cases against bootleggers were thrown out of court. Those visited by Izzy were advised to ignore the engraved invitation to come to New York.

Providence has accepted Izzy's challenge joyously. The Federal Sherlock has already used some of his noted disguises. "Mebbe you could give a hard-wokin' man a little something to drink—yes?"

The speaker, with two roughly clad companions, all apparently laborers, peered beseechingly across the bar in a saloon at No. 615 Westminster street.

"All day long I'm carrying bricks in a hod," he continued. "It's terrible. Me and me friends need something."

"What'll you have?" gruffly inquired the bartender, after a searching gaze.

THREE FOR SEVENTY-FIVE.

"A little schnapps, vickey, yes," smilingly replied the customer as he rubbed his hands. His companions rubbed their hands as the bartender carefully filled three lamentably small glasses from the contents of a bottle.

"How much?" asked the customer.

"Seventy five cents."

"For vun?" almost shrieked the customer.

"No, for three," the bartender reassured.

"Oi, that's better." The customer and his friends were again smiling.

The customer did a curious thing. He poured the drink, not into his capacious throat, but into a metal pocket of his shirt.

Then he reached into his trousers pocket, and casually produced a prohibition agent's badge which he gently proffered to the bartender.

"My name is Einstein," he said, still smiling. "Izzy Einstein. Maybe you heard of me. This is my partner Moe Smith, and this," pointing to the third member of the trio, "is Frankie Reager. You're under arrest."

The bartender, to whom Einstein of theory fame was absolutely unknown, shivered with dread at the mention of the name of Einstein the prohibition agent. He gave his name as Joseph Woodwick and was served with a summons to appear before the United States commissioner later.

BROKE IN NEWTON BOYS SENT HOME

Three boys walked into the Newton police station and said, "We started out yesterday to see the world, but now we're broke and want to get back home."

So Henry Gleason, fifteen years old, of No. 72 Dorchester street; Charles Carr of No. 39 Tudor street and John McCormack of No. 51 Newman street, South Boston, whose pockets contained a few coppers, were financed and shipped to their respective homes by the police.

The boys are due to go to school next week and they felt they ought to get a peek at something bigger than South Boston before taking up the old school books.

DECLARES EX-HUSBAND DROVE AUTO IN SACCO MURDER CASE

CONFESSED DIVORCEE SAYS

Wound Up by Stealing Judge Webster Thayer's Automobile

A new witness to the double murder in South Braintree for which Sacco and Vanzetti have been convicted and which has stirred labor circles throughout the entire world, is now in the State Prison at Charlestown.

This amazing revelation was made today by Mrs. Jessie Henry Dodson, Needham Heights resident, who was granted a divorce in the Dedham Court from William F. ("Washington Bill") Dodson.

DROVE DEATH CAR.

Dodson, her divorced husband, according to Mrs. Dodson, confessed to her that he was the driver of the famous death car. She declares that he confessed to her that Sacco and Vanzetti are both innocent of the murders for which they were convicted.

"Those fellows had nothing to do with the murder. I was the driver of the automobile in the killiling and Sacco and Vanzetti had nothing to do with it," she quotes her husband as saying.

Today the authorities and the attorneys for the defence of Sacco and Vanzetti are said to be working on the information that she has disclosed. Attorneys who are working for a new trial for the convicted men are hopeful that they may be able to obtain the new trial on the word of the divorcee.

STOLE JUDGE'S AUTO.

Dodson, who Mrs. Dodson says knows all about the murder, is now serving from three to five years in the State prison at Charlestown for the theft of an automobile belonging to Judge Webster Thayer.

It is a strange coincidence that it was Judge Thayer who presided at the trial of Sacco and Vanzetti.

Dodson, who is said to be an ex-convict and an automobile thief of national repute, married the Needham Heights woman after a whirlwind courtship begun when he was engaged by her as a chauffeur.

RICH GIRLS EASY PREY.

"Infatuation will lead a girl to fasten the dreams of her ideal to a handsome man, and blind her to his faults," said Mrs. Henry.

"No young girl should envy a woman of wealth. She is a prey to unscrupulous men who shatter dreams and wreck lives with cruel disregard, in their greed for money."

"Billy Dodson was my chauffeur for nine months before I finally succumbed to his whirlwind love-making. He was the handsomest and cleverest lover a girl ever knew.

"I noticed him first because of his ability as a mechanic. My car had been repaired by a number of experts, but the trouble persisted. With skill that was as artful as his subsequent lovemaking my new chauffeur took the machine apart and put it together before my very eyes.

"I admired his ability and perhaps I was too gracious in praising him. At any rate I realized that the gulf between our social stations had been bridged, we were having long and increasingly personal chats as he drove me on my afternoon calls.

CHANGED OVER NIGHT.

"Suddenly I realized I was fascinated by my employe to the exclusion of everything else. I thought of him day and night, and in my blind adoration, I imagined he possessed all the admirable qualities of my ideal, and I had always dreamed of loving.

"He told me he worshipped me, and wanted to spend his life serving me. He was humble and masterful at the same time. I could not resist him. He said he fell in love first with my reddish hair.

"I dismissed my maid who used to dress it for me, and let him play with it. He braided it in two braids on each side of my face, and used to pretend I was his squaw wife.

"He told me he wanted to support me with his own hands just as though I were a poor woman, and shortly before we were married he went to work in a garage in Needham.

"But his good intentions dissolved over night. As soon as we were married, he was like a different man. And then I realized that his true self was very different from the chivalrous, poetic lover who had wooed me.

THROWN INTO CLOSET.

"I saw him as he was, a bad-mannered good-for-nothing. My sensitive nature nature was repelled by him at every meal. I could not bear to eat at the table with him, so I asked him to eat at a hotel. He was glad of the opportunity.

"His friends came to my house and tried to use it as an underworld club-room. One night when some of his friends were in my drawing room to discuss plans for an automobile theft, I tried to prevent them, and was thrust in a closet by my husband and forced to spend most of the night there.

"At first he deceived me into believing he was doing a second-hand automobile business. He brought three or four cars to my garage every night, remodeled them and promptly sold them.

"I trusted him, suspected nothing and gave him money. Then I found out that the cars were stolen. Seeing them in my grounds, no one suspected."

Mrs. Henry told how she insisted that her husband leave her home while he was engaged in this business. On one occasion, she says, he brought her an $800 gift. She could not bear to touch it, she says, when her husband boastingly said he had bought it from a $1,000 commission received for driving the Sacco Vanzetti car.

There's a Market For Good Used Furniture

This is especially true now when people are trying to pick up pieces at a reasonable price to fill some corner in the new home into which they have moved.

These people know that for many reasons — oftentimes from necessity—many people offer beautiful furniture for sale and they look for it in the best known market of Boston—the "For Sale" columns in the Boston American's Want Ad pages.

Whether you want to buy or sell, it will pay you to read this column and to use it to fill your needs. If you do not find just what you want, write an ad of your own and

WAR VET HERO STOPS RUNNING HORSES

John Gately, Yankee Division veteran, heard screams, saw two horses galloping madly through crowded Main street, Charlestown, this afternoon, run from his store, seized the horses by the heads and brought them to a stop after being dragged considerable distance. He then released E. Paulicini, the driver, wedged between the two horses.

Paulicini, who lives at No. 122 Prince street, North End, slightly bruised and frightened, told his rescuer that the horses had become frightened by the roar of the elevated trains as he was coming into Main street from Union street. They jumped and he fell from his seat.

Galloping madly, the horses swerved from side to side, as terrified spectators, many of them women, scrambled for safety. Gately was standing before his place of business, No. 90 Main street. He was bruised about the knees and shins.

CANDIDATE SAYS REVERE IS A DEN OF VICE

Charging that the city of Revere has degenerated into "a den of vice," which is being run by painted women and professional bootleggers, William J. Canavan today announced his candidacy for Mayor. His platform will be, "Purify Revere."

"Bootlegging is wide open," said Canavan. "A man or woman can hardly alight from a narrow gauge train without being accosted by a bootlegger.

"Men and women are selling liquor openly. There are at least a dozen poisonous hootch places between Revere street and Beach street where you can buy the liquor you want at any time.

"Wonderland along Ocean avenue is absolutely disreputable and immoral. The good people there are ashamed of the place.

"I complained to the Mayor and he says his hands are tied. The Mayor appointed a committee to investigate vice, but nothing has come of it.

"The Police Department needs a good shaking up.

"Young women are selling liquor openly. They accost women who stand from trains and offer to sell liquor on the spot."

"SHANGHAIED" BY GOLD SEEKERS

Philadelphia, Sept. 7.—A tale of being shanghaied by treasure seekers bound on an expedition for the Lusitania's gold was told today by three men who jumped into Delaware River from the craft was steaming seaward. There were picked up by a tug and turned over to a police boat.

The men, John Flynn, Edward Waters and Herman Roth, said they had accepted work offered them by a fireman of the steamship Blakeley, outfitted here by a salvaging company for the Lusitania project. They had understood, they said, that the vessel was not to sail until tomorrow, but that while they were at work in the hold the craft got under way. When they remonstrated with the captain, they continued, he refused to pay attention to them, saying he was going to Norfolk for coal. Then they jumped. They will be questioned further by the police.

The men who shanghaied them up reported that the Blakeley had signalled that three men listed neither as passengers nor crew had been discovered aboard, and that before they could be stopped, they had dived overboard.

WOMAN KILLED AS AUTO HITS A WALL

Norwalk, Ct., Sept. 7.—Mrs. Charles A. Koenig, aged sixty-five years, of this city, was killed and her husband severely injured in an automobile accident at Goldens Bridge, N. Y., when their car skidded, crashed into a stone wall and overturned. Their two grandchildren, Frank and George Webb, escaped with bruises.

JURY PROBING KILLING OF WOOD, JR.

The Middlesex County Grand Jury today began an investigation into the death of William M. Wood, Jr., son of the wool magnate. Young Wood met his death while engaged in an auto race along the State highway near Reading, August 15.

The car he was alleged to have been racing with is said to have been driven by Arthur H. Earle of Lexington, who later gave himself up to the police.

Among the witnesses who appeared before the jury were James F. Bailey of Brookline, Edward V. Earle of Lexington, a brother of Arthur; William E. Florence of Reading, John A. Roden of Malden, Chief of Police Jeremiah J. Cullinane of Reading and Patrolmen Francis Stack and Patrick Long of Reading.

The report of the jury on this case is expected tomorrow.

HEAD OF SHIP COMPANY IS INDICTED

New York, Sept. 7.—Harry K Barr, president of the Barr Shipping Corporation, and John A. Kirsch, a commission merchant, have been indicted by a Federal Grand Jury for violation of the customs laws, it was disclosed today when the two appeared before Federal Judge Foster for arraignment. The indictment was returned secretly several days ago.

Four others indicted with Barr and Kirsch have not yet been found by Federal authorities, it was stated. One of the four, Alexander Karlin, who is said at times to have represented the Russian Soviet government, has left the country.

Barr and Kirsch entered pleas of not guilty, and were released in $5,000 each.

The customs violation alleged was in connection with unloading fifty drums of oil here recently from the steamship Javary.

Assistant United States Attorney Clark said the case against the indicted men was built on testimony of Captain Daniel Dougherty of the Javary, who was convicted in January of attempting to land the liquor, and now is serving a term in Federal Prison.

FIRED; TRIES TO SHOOT BOSS

Leo Augustus, a discharged laborer, formerly employed on a building under construction on West street, today returned to the site with a pistol, demanding the life of Frank Ryan, superintendent of construction, who had discharged him.

When the men of the job attempted to disarm him he turned the weapon upon them and they scattered. Before he could again devote his attention to Ryan he was arrested.

Judge Creed in Municipal Court ordered him sent to the Psychopathic Hospital for observation.

Leo told the police he had been a Judge in France and had come to this country to administer justice. He had been discharged because of his radical utterances and sentiments.

BIRD WIRES QUESTION TO JOSEPH WALKER

The following terse, open telegram urging undivided support to the Republican Senatorial nominee was sent by Charles Sumner Bird to Joseph Walker, who opposes Senator Lodge for the nomination:

"The defeat of the nominee of the Republican party for the United States Senate would be a nation-wide calamity. You are a Republican; so am I. You are opposed to Senator Lodge. I am for him. If you are nominated I will support you. If Lodge is nominated will you support him? A divided Republican party spells disaster. Thousands of Republicans wait your answer."

Flap Finds Pianos Are Heavier to Lift Than Lunchroom Sinkers

Ole Was Born to Move 'Em, but Flapper Says It's a Silly Way to Try and Pick Up Any Soft, Easy Money; Just Practice on Your Own

By THE FLAPPER

CARYL FRINK.

"I've got the stool," I said. "You take the piano."

"All-ee-up!"

"If you don't quit talking Chinese at me, I won't know where I am," I complained to Ole, who was helping me move pianos. "Besides, you make me nervous. Why don't you get started, if we're going?"

"That's what I wanna know," growled Ole. "I'been givin' you the signal t'start f'r five minutes. All-ee-up!"

"All right," I said. "Let's go."

"Oop," replied Ole.

"Another signal?" I asked.

"S'heavy," grunted Ole. "Pick it up a little on your end, canteha?"

PREFERS TO MOVE 'EM.

And so we started on our burdeasome journey. There is nothing so heavy as a piano, including freight-trains, horses, houses and dairy lunch doughnuts. As a means of picking up a little loose change, piano moving is plainly silly. I told Ole so as we jogged along on the moving van.

"Oh, I don't know," he said, taking a licorice drop out of a bag in his pocket and chewing on it thoughtfully. "I'd ruther move 'em than play on 'em. An' that's what I usta hafta do.

"My ma wanted to make a moosishun outa me," continued Ole, starting on another wad of licorice. "An' she usta stand over me with a ruler. Every time I hit the wrong note she banged me one.

LEARNED TRADE AT HOME

"In fact—" Ole paused to unglue his teeth— "that's how I took up piano movin'. Ours was the first one I moved. I got it as far as the back stairs an' then let'er go. I got more'n my fingers banged f'r that but I didn't hafta take any more piano lessons.

"I e'n remember my Pa, standin' there lookin' at the pile o' junk that usta to be the piano.

"'Ma,' he says, 'we been makin'a mistake with Ole. He's a born piana mover. I seen a reg'lar mover do a better job of smashin' a pianner.'"

OLE IS A LUCKY GUY.

"An'," finished Ole, with a contented sigh, "I never regretted takin' up the callin', either. Whenever I begin to feel overworked, I go around to some theatre an' watch some poor guy playin' on the darn things, an' then it comes to me how lucky I am. Yessir, I'd a lot rather move 'em than play 'em."

The Flapper has been having too easy too easy a time of it. She is now about to be put to work in earnest. Bright and early tomorrow morning she will punch the clock at the J. A. Cigar factory and start rolling her own. On the next day she will try her hand at making something else. Production must be sp. fed up, says the Flap, even if she has to do it herself.

GOOD FOR THE BICEPS

R-r-ready? L-l-let'er go. If you don't think this here's work, try it on your own piano.

JACKSON SHOWS ALLEN'S RECORD AGAINST COX'S

The records of Governor Cox and Attorney-General Allen were compared by State Treasurer James Jackson, ace of the Governor's "Flying Squadron" of speakers, in speeches today in a number of cities near Boston.

"The official acts of the Governor stand out by themselves," Jackson said. "His prompt and efficient manner of settling the coal crisis is well known. His appointments record him one of the best Governors this State has ever had. He has fostered neither race nor religion. He has tried to serve all to the best of his ability.

"The Attorney-General's record, on the other hand, bears close scrutiny. He has accomplished two things in his term of office—the prosecution of the Tufts and Pelletier cases. When that is said, you have said all there is to be said."

The flying squadron of speakers left the State House early today for a two-day tour including virtually every section of the State. In the group of Cox speakers are:

E. Loring Young, speaker of the House of Representatives; James G. Harris of Medford, Senator Wesley E. Monk of Watertown, Mrs. Frank N. Hand, Haverhill; Mrs. Edgar B. Rideout, Beverly; Mrs. J. A. Attwill, Lynn; Mrs. George Minot Baker, Concord, and Mayor E. O. Childs of Newton.

IT'S TIME TO PAY INCOME TAX

Time to pal some more income taxes!

Malcolm E. Nichols of the Internal Revenue Department, has mailed 75,000 notifications that the third quarterly payment of the income tax is due on September 15.

Twenty million dollars is what the government expects to realize from this payment. The sum is slightly smaller than that paid the department in June. At that time most individuals squared up their accounts.

SEIZE WHISKEY AND ARREST YACHT'S CREW

New York, Sept. 7.—Harbor police today seized a yacht loaded with 500 cases of whiskey and arrested her crew of five on charges of violating the State prohibition enforcement law.

The yacht was the Glendoveer, a palatial seagoing vessel, said by the police to be worth $50,000, outside of her cargo which was valued at $70,000. She was captured in the East River, after having slipped up stream in a heavy mist.

Much of the whiskey was marked Canada. Police believe the cargo was smuggled in from the Dominion.

The quintet arrested aboard the vessel disclaimed all knowledge of her ownership or her cargo. They all gave New York addresses. Four of them claimed to be seamen and the fifth a cook.

CLAIM HOOTCH HID IN BANK CELLAR

A clash between Attorney Daniel J. Daley, counsel for Lawrence Riley, and Chief Urquhart of the Arlington police, featured the trial of Riley on liquor charges before Judge Walcott in Cambridge District Court today.

Riley was charged with making a sale of liquor to an agent of the New England Society for the Enforcement of Prohibition, while the Arlington police charged him with keeping and exposing liquor for sale.

Attorney Daley charged that Chief Urquhart had called Riley a murderer.

"I said that an old man had died from drinking bad liquor and that if Riley sold it to him he was nothing better than a murderer," qualified the chief.

For keeping and exposing Riley received a suspended sentence of six months, on the sale charge a fine of $50.

Riley is janitor of the Arlington National Bank, next door to the Arlington police station, and the police claimed they found hootch in the cellar of the bank.

The father does not know what girls are coming to. If he could be left in a Gaboon forest to study gorillas, he would never see an old man gorilla take a club to his young. If he could go to Japan and shake his strap at a child, that child would only laugh. No one strikes a child in Japan, and the Japanese are efficient. Their mainspring, which is courage, is not broken in childhood.

The man that would beat his child in a rage and would not whip a valuable young dog or horse for fear of ruining it, belongs distinctly to the gorilla family—but lower down.

La Follette leading by three to one is one report of Wisconsin's election seen by this writer. Those that know the sincerity of La Follette, or the loyalty of Wisconsin, wonder how the other man got that (one).

Bishop Tuttle says the young girl of today differs little from her sisters of fifty years ago. He might add that she differs little from her woman sister of 2,000 years ago, her Cretan sister of 3,500 years ago, or her Egyptian sister still farther back. Other things change, human nature very little.

Power must be SOMEWHERE. The Germans have taken it from the Kaiser, as we took it from King George, and with Germany, as with us, power has shifted to the hands of intelligent finance.

Stinnes, great industrial financier of Germany, has made with France a bargain to do thirteen billion francs' worth of rebuilding in lieu of cash reparations.

That will mean a labor boom for Germany—the things will be made there, and France will actually GET something.

G. C. Young killed a crippled taxi-driver, and was electrocuted in New Jersey last Tuesday. His wife, mother, sisters and three children to lifelong disgrace. It must have been difficult for those women jurors.

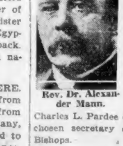
REV. DR. MANN AGAIN HEADS CHURCH BOARD

Portland, Ore. Sept. 7.—Rev. Dr. Alexander Mann of Boston was unanimously re-elected president of the House of Deputies at the 47th triennial convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church here. The pastor of Trinity Church has been president of the body since 1912.



Rev. Dr. Alexander Mann.

Bishop William Cabel Brown of Virginia was elected chairman of the House of Bishops, and Rev. Charles L. Pardee of New York was chosen secretary of the House of Bishops.

ELLEN TERRY ACTS AT GARDEN FETE

London, Sept. 7.—Ellen Terry, dean of England's actresses, who thrilled theatregoers of years ago with her Shakespearean characterizations in Henry Irving's company, has once more donned the makeup for her admirers. This last occasion was during a garden fete at Walmer Castle, where she appeared as "The Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe." Miss Terry's face as seen by the camera, shows the lines of age, as does her body. She was taken to the castle in a wheel chair.

BEGINS IN SATURDAY'S BOSTON AMERICAN

"MISS BOSTON" FACES JUDGES TONIGHT

Atlantic City, Sept. 7.—Returning breathless to her hotel today, Miss Charlotte Trowbridge, Boston's delegate to the International Beauty Contest here, was heard to remark to her chaperone, Mrs. A. P. Fuller: "What a day!"

Since her arrival "Miss Boston" has been showered with so much attention and entertainment that she is quite bewildered.

"I'm having the most wonderful time of my life," she told a Boston American reporter. "Outside of Boston I think Atlantic City is the most beautiful place in the world. Everybody has been so kind to me. My visit has been one round of pleasure. Please tell the folks at home I am confident of returning with at least one of the pageant prizes."

The interview was cut short by a messenger that "Miss Boston" and her chaperone were wanted to attend the pageant parade of chairs and floats, bands, civic and fraternal organizations.

In the evening Miss Trowbridge will witness the life guards' boat races to determine the rowing championship of Atlantic City, after which she will attend the monster vaudeville entertainment. Prizes to the winners of the rolling chair parade are to be distributed at the vaudeville show, which will be followed by choral singing and the most important event of the entire carnival—the selection of the winner of the inter-city beauties.

One of Miss Trowbridge's proudest possessions is an engraved certificate signed by the Mayor of Atlantic City. It reads:

"I hereby tender to Miss Charlotte Trowbridge of Boston, Mass., the full freedom of our city during her sojourn in our community, and commend her to the courtesy of the people of Atlantic City."

With this "Miss Boston" received a key to the city, tied with blue and white ribbons.

Then followed her presentation to King Neptune, impersonated by Hudson Maxim, and his court of twenty beauties, and the Queen, Miss Margaret Gorman, holder of the Golden Mermaid trophy, and designated as "Miss America."

2 DORCHESTER BOYS MISSING FROM HOME

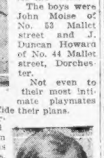
Anxious parents are awaiting word from two Dorchester youngsters who left home Sunday night, headed presumably for the West.

John Moise.

The boys were John Moise of No. 23 Mallet street and J. Duncan Howard of No. 44 Mallet street, Dorchester.

Not even to their most intimate playmates did the lads confide their plans.

Moise is thirteen years old, four feet, ten inches, weighs ninety pounds, has blue eyes, medium brown hair. When last seen, he wore a gray cap, white sport blouse, khaki trousers, brown stockings, tennis shoes.



J. D. Howard.

Howard is eleven years old, four feet, eleven inches tall, weighs sixty-five pounds, has blue eyes, blonde hair, and wore blue serge cap, white blouse, brown stockings and tennis shoes.

The parents of the lads would appreciate any information concerning them.

NEW SUPREME COURT JUDGE FROM UTAH

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7—George Sutherland, whose nomination as judge of the United States Supreme Court was recently confirmed, will succeed to the post left vacant by the resignation of Judge John N. Clarke. The new judge is a prominent Utah jurist of wide experience. His predecessor attracted wide prominence by his claims that the best interests of the United States lay in an alliance with Europe.

Mgr. Lavelle Grieves Over Ireland's 'Great Tragedy'

Dublin, Sept. 7 (By International News Service).—"I am going home with a sorry heart," declared Monsignor Lavelle, rector of St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York, in an interview today on the eve of his departure.

"I am going home with the conviction that all we have done is fruitless effort. It pains beyond measure to think that such a glorious opportunity should be turned by the hands of her sons into one of Ireland's greatest tragedies."

TROUBLE DUE TO RIVALS, SAYS GREENE

H. V. Greene and the H. V. Greene Company today filed answers to the Supreme Court in the $14,000,000 suit brought in behalf of subscribers to the stock of Green's various enterprises. The suit seeks to have a receiver appointed and demands an accounting.

In his answer Greene categorically denied all the allegations of fraud and conspiracy contained in the suit and declares that in some instances the complainants exercised gross fraud and conspiracy upon the court in an effort to bring about the appointment of a receiver.

The answers of Greene and that of the Greene company were, in effect, identical.) Greene also filed a demurrer and pleas in abatement asking that the bill in equity be dismissed.

He stated in his answer that he was never guilty of fraud or conspiracy in any of his dealings, nor a party to same, and that he acted always in good faith. He charges that the allegations contained in the suit against him and his companies are based on false information and hostile propaganda furnished and spread broadcast by certain enemies and competitors.

ARREST CODMAN IN GEORGIA IN LIQUOR DEAL

W. C. Codman, Jr., Harvard graduate and member of a prominent and wealthy Back Bay family, is under arrest in Savannah, Ga., on the charge of complicity in a deal to ship liquor from Savannah to Chicago under the guise of sweet potatoes.

The arrest came about when prohibition officers raided a freight car on a spur track running from Codman's big truck farm to the main tracks of the Seaboard Airline. In the freight car, according to prohibition officers are thirty-eight barrels containing 4,800 quarts of red whiskey. The car was billed by one "Samuel F. Brown" to the Consolidated Fruit Company of Chicago, and was billed as "Sweet Potatoes." Codman denies all knowledge of the liquor. He is held in $1,000 bail and will appear today before a United States commissioner.

Codman is the son of William Coombs Codman, real estate broker of No. 15 State street. He graduated from Harvard in the class of 1912. The father is in business with another son, John Codman. In June Mr. Codman, Sr., brought suit for divorce after many years of married life, charging desertion.

LANDLORD FINED, TENANTS FREED

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Ball, No. 120 Regent street, Roxbury, charged with assault and battery upon Julius Hertel of the same address, were found not guilty by Judge Hearn in the Roxbury Court today. Hertel also was tried on a similar charge and was found guilty. He was ordered to pay costs.

The trio was hailed into court because of a free-for-all staged in the apartment on Regent street. It started when Hertel, who owns the house, asked for rent. He claims that husband and wife attacked him and that he acted in self-defence.

Mrs. Ball jumped through the window and, with blood coming from numerous bruises, ran screaming up Regent street. The husband followed shortly afterwards via the same route shouting for the police.

MacMILLAN IS SOON TO VISIT CAPE BRETON

Sidney, N. S., Sept. 7.—Donald B. MacMillan, Arctic explorer, who has arrived here with his schooner Bowdoin, after fourteen months in the far north, was preparing today to leave on a cruise of the Bras d'Or Lakes, Cape Breton.

He declared he believed it impossible for any vessel to make a trip through the Fury and Hecla straits in the Arctic region. Large ice fields block the passage in Fox Channel and reverse tides made the journey a feat which no vessel could perform, he said.

Donald B. MacMillan.

According to Captain MacMillan, observations of the entire west coast of Baffinland cannot be made unless the voyage is made through Cumberland Sound and thence across land of the western coast.

During his fourteen months in the far north MacMillan discovered that considerable land, declared to have been found by "Northwest" Fox over 200 years ago, does not exist. Fox Channel, so-called after an old explorer, is a much larger body of water than was formerly believed possible.

SLAYER GIVEN TWENTY YEARS

George Hosten, 52, a negro, of Cambridge, was today sentenced to from 18 to 20 years for manslaughter, by Judge Hammond in Middlesex Superior Criminal Court.

Hosten pleaded guilty to manslaughter, after being arraigned on a charge of murder.

He was the star boarder in the home of Mrs. Mary Bembray of No. 133 Erie street, Cambridge, and on May 21, after a party in which gin had been served plentifully, he became involved in a fight with Mrs. Bembray. Her 14-year-old son Albert came to his mother's defense. Hosten attacked the boy with an axe, killing him, and then swung the axe on Mrs. Bembray. She was severely cut up but recovered.

Ten Years at Filene's

Pre-war days—striking our gait—growing pains

TEN years ago this week we moved across the street into this building.

From the odd assortment of buildings patched one on the other to the fine new structure representing the best store-building knowledge of the day was a long stride—how long no one outside this organization knows or can realize.

NEW building—new location—new departments—new employes—so much newness that the old was almost swallowed up. But one fine big thing remained unchanged—Filene ideals. We state them now as we printed them 10 years ago—the foundation planks of this business:

1. Right relations with right producing markets
2. Right distribution of right merchandise at right prices.

SETTLING down was a huge task. Not the least of the many different jobs was to find the right man or woman for each of the thousand cogs in the new machine.

Of the men and women selected in 1912 for the augmented organization, hundreds are with us today, tried and true. Three of them share in the general management of the business. Many others are division and department executives. Of the members of the original Filene family, 1047 strong in 1912, hundreds are still active and valued employees. Add to these the forward-looking folks who have come to us since 1912 and you have the present Filene family of 2850—all pulling together to further the same ideals.

NEW departm nts called for much work and study. The men's and boys' store had its place to make in the community. Last year's business of nearly five million of dollars in this section of our business alone speaks for itself. Other new sections have done equally well. The new street floor shops have prospered. The restaurant was a success from the start. Both men's and boys' barber shops have doubled in size. The Automatic Bargain Basement grew by leaps and bounds once released from space limitation. But this is a long story saved for another chapter.

Tomorrow—Chapter 4.

A feature of the Filene Anniversary will be the Parade of Fall Fashions to be held in the Copley-Plaza Ballroom afternoons and evenings, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, September 11, 12 and 13. Among the attractions at the afternoon performances will be an exhibition of ballroom dancing by Elizabeth Hines, now starring in "Little Nellie Kelly." Cards of admission may be had on application at Personal Service Bureau, street floor balcony, and Information Desk, sixth floor.

TEN ALCOHOL VICTIMS ARE DEAD

New York, Sept. 7. — With the death of two more men today from wood alcohol, the total number of such victims in the Red Hook section of Brooklyn had reached ten.

The authorities are pushing their investigation. The Grand Jury will be presented with all available data regarding the wood alcohol menace and an indictment will be sought against a woman who runs a grocery store in the Red Hook district, and a clerk, charged with having sold the liquor which killed two of the victims.

The police, county officials and prohibition agents began a drive today to round up the bootleggers now infesting the section.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Bisurated Magnesia Ends Acidity—Gives Instant Relief to a Bad Stomach

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial diresants are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laring pade sil diresitve aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after meals. This will neutralize the acidity, prevent the formation of sour gases, and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form —never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

Cocoanut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo "Use Mulsified"

If you want to keep your hair in good condition be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply put two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water, then moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. 2? in very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

BOSTON FACES BIG SCHOOL SHORTAGE

With an enrollment of 150,000 pupils in Boston schools, an increase of nearly 10 per cent. over last year's enrollment, and no new buildings to meet the increase, Boston faces an acute shortage of schoolrooms. It will be necessary to hold two and sometimes even three sessions in schools in a day to care for the great numbers of children who will flock to the opening next week.

This condition will prevail in spite of the fact that five portable schoolhouses will be erected at once, to take care of the overflow. The unemployment and lower wages paid youthful workers in industry it is believed is a big factor in the increased attendance.

Strikes and labor troubles which have tied up building operations for the past two years, is also a factor. There is $6,000,000 available for schoolhouses for which plans have not yet been made.

Portable structures will be built in the Robert G. Shaw and Brighton High School districts. The five new portable schools already built will accommodate nearly 4,000 in the East Boston, Dorchester and Roxbury districts.

South Station Trains Late; Signs Say 'On Time'

The Boston American survey of train schedules today shows all local trains reaching the South Station from 15 to 45 minutes late. Despite the "on time" records on the bulletins of the roads, the trains thus designated in almost every case came in late. An example was a Plymouth train marked on the board "on time." Inquiry among the passengers developed the fact that the train was 40 minutes late.

The roads continue to say that train service "is practically normal."

100,000 FLEE; TURKS NEAR SMYRNA

Smyrna, Sept. 7 (By Associated Press).—It is reported here that King Constantine has quit Athens. Whether the King has gone to the front to encourage his troops or has left for political reasons is conjectural. Rumors of the resignation of the Greek Cabinet and the return of former Premier Venizelos are current.

By International News Service.

London, Sept. 7.—Turkish forces on the offensive against the Greeks on the Anatolian battle front are advancing with astonishing rapidity and are only twenty-one miles from Smyrna, seat of Greek great headquarters, according to advices from Constantinople.

One hundred thousand Greeks, not counting civilians, are in flight.

General Tricoupis, active Greek commander in the field, is reported captured.

Constantinople dispatches say that the Greeks have evacuated four more towns—Balramitch, Ezine, Aivadjik and Higha. The Turks are reported to control virtually all the Asiatic coast to the Dardanelles.

ANTHRACITE MEN MAY GET BACK MONDAY

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Sept. 7.—Delegates representing the anthracite miners, called to ratify the settlement between operators and hard coal miners that would end the suspension which has continued for five months, got down to work today.

The convention of miners started yesterday with the appointment of credential and other committees. More than 1,000 representatives of the coal diggers' unions were present when the convention was called to order by Thomas Kennedy, district president.

Today the delegates gave their attention to an analysis and interpretation of the settlement between themselves and their employers which, with ratification by the convention, would mean that the miners could start work again by Monday, unless unusual opposition develops.

Opposition to the plan, it was understood, would come from the Pottsville, Pittston and Old Forge local unions, but John L. Lewis, international president of the Mine Workers' Union, stated there was nothing to fear as far as ratification was concerned. Ratification was the last barrier to stop 155,0000 anthracite miners from returning to the plants.

N. E. Delegates Talk Coal Distribution

Philadelphia, Sept. 7.—Ways and means for accomplishing the most expeditious distribution of anthracite coal throughout the United States, upon ratification of the peace agreement at Wilkesbarre, was the subject before representatives of New York, Pennsylvania and the New England States meeting here today.

Aside from distribution, the subject of a limit on profits for operators and retailers was to be considered. Important action was forecast.

The conference was called at the request of Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce. Mr. Hoover and H. B. Spencer, Federal fuel distributor, were expected here to represent the government, as was also a representative of the Interstate Commerce Commission. Pennsylvania was to be represented by its fuel commission, and New York and the New England States by delegates appointed by their respective governors.

Governors of other Atlantic seaboard States were said to have sent delegates.

Secretary Hoover is said to have declared yesterday that there must be no repetition of the experience during the last war, when "independent" mines charged 75 cents a ton above the fixed gross profit margin of $2.50 a ton.

New York, Sept. 7.—With a song on her lips and a flatiron against a board toward which she leaned, Mrs. Hannah Eldred of No. 173 Grand boulevard, Baldwin, L. I., spent her 100th birthday much as she has spent most of the natal day anniversaries of her extended life.

She is said to be the oldest woman on Long Island. Those who visited her proclaimed her also the happiest. She lives with her oldest daughter, Mrs. Anna Verity, who is seventy-eight.

BABSON URGES BOULEVARD TO FRAMINGHAM

Wellesley citizens, headed by Roger W. Babson, are asking for the construction of a concrete boulevard, starting at Brookline Village and extending through Wellesley to Framingham Centre.

Of this boulevard, Mr. Babson in a public statement to the people of Wellesley, says:

"Such a boulevard would materially shorten the running time between Wellesley and Boston, and thereby add to the value of all property of the town. I feel justified in asking others to use their influence to hasten construction. I understand there will be no expense to the town of Wellesley, although it would result in greatly helping the town."

The matter will be brought to the attention of Commissioner John H. Cole, Department of Public Works.

The Grand Jury investigation will begin the latter part of this week and the result will go far in determining the fate of Kline.

SPURNED, SHOT GIRL, KILLED HIMSELF

New York, Sept. 7.—A bullet was the answer of Detective Sergeant Alfred Blass when Dorothy Brights, artist's model, refused to marry him. Then he sent a bullet into his own body. He died in a hospital. Miss Brights will recover. Blass was thirty-nine and the model twenty-six.

The trouble occurred at her apartment. Blass went there and reiterated his often-made demand that the girl marry him.

"I am going to California," he told her. "You're going, too, or something will happen."

When Miss Brights declined he pulled the trigger of his revolver. Miss Brights laughed when the pistol did not explode, and told Blass to be careful with dangerous jokes.

He pulled the trigger again and Miss Brights sank with a bullet in the breast. Thinking he had killed his sweetheart, Blass shot himself.

Cox-Allen Contest "Disrupts" House of Parker

Lancaster, Sept. 7.—Politics is "disrupting" the harmony of the House of Parker.

Herbert Parker, former attorney-general, is stumping for J. Weston Allen, who is seeking the Republican nomination for Governor.

Mrs. Parker and daughter Katheryn are equally as enthusiastic in advocating the nomination of Governor Cox.

Captain George Parker, the son, head of the Massachusetts State Police Patrol, is reported as having a leaning toward Cox.

RUSSIANS GRAB BRITISH SHIPS AT BATUM

Batum, Sept. 7.—Russian port authorities have seized two more British vessels, the Hedwige and the Lady Elinor. When the British flag was lowered, the Soviet military band struck up "God Save the King," after which the Red Flag was hoisted to the strains of the "Internationale."

Word has been received here from Constantinople that if the ships are not released, the British will dispatch a fleet of destroyers to Batum and forcibly take them.

Thousands Of Women Are Now Taking This Newer Form Of Iron

Called Nuxated Iron

Worn-out Housewife Tells How She Quickly Regained Her Health and Strength.

"Only a short two weeks ago I was so tired, nervous and worn-out from the drain on my nerves and strength of house-hold drudgery, that I thought I could not keep up another day.

A short two weeks' treatment of the newer form of iron had given me a marvelous increase in health, strength and energy. Now I can do my whole house without help, and do not have to sit at home in the evening 'all-in' sick and nervous.

The above is a typical hypothetical case," says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital Out-Door Dept., New York, and the Watchester County Hospital. "You cannot be well and strong and full of vigor, force and power unless your blood is rich in iron. It is your red blood that enables you to resist and overcome disease and that nourishes every organ in your body. Without iron your blood becomes thin, pale and watery. Your blood cannot nourish your vital organs and as a result you may have pains in your heart or kidneys, indigestion, headaches, and feel all 'run-down' and tired out.

When your blood lacks iron do not waste your time taking stimulating medicines or narcotic drugs, but directly enrich your blood with the newer form of iron sold by all druggists under the name of Nuxated Iron, which is like the iron in spinach, lentils, and apples, and is in a form easily assimilated into your blood.

Get a bottle of Nuxated Iron today. Take it for two weeks and if you have not like thousands of others, obtained most surprising health, strength and energy, the manufacturers will promptly refund your money. The following local druggists will sell you Nuxated Iron with the satisfaction or money back guarantee:

Hough & Dutton, Epstein Drug Co., A. F. Frye, S. S. Pierce, Armstrong Co.

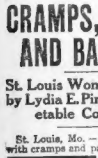
CRAMPS, PAINS AND BACKACHE

St. Louis Woman Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound



St. Louis, Mo. — "I was bothered with cramps and pains every month and had backache and had to go to bed as I could not work. My mother and my whole family always took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for such troubles and they induced me to try it and it has helped me very much. I don't have cramps any more, and I can do my housework all through the month. I recommend your Vegetable Compound to my friends for female troubles." — Mrs. DELLA SCHOLZ, 1412 Salisbury St., St. Louis, Mo.

Just think for a moment. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been in use for nearly fifty years. It is prepared from medicinal plants, by the utmost pharmaceutical skill, and superior methods. The ingredients thus combined in the Compound correct those conditions which cause such annoying symptoms as had been troubling Mrs. Scholz. The Vegetable Compound exercises a restorative influence of the most desirable character, correcting the trouble in a gentle but efficient manner.

GIRL ACCUSES POLICEMEN OF BRUTALITY

Miss Dorothy Dupont, hostess of a New York cafe, charges her stepbrother and another young man who were her escorts, were brutally beaten by policemen of the Back Bay station when they protested against the rough handling she was getting from the officers.

She further stated that a witness to the affair was manhandled while being taken to the Back Bay station in the patrol wagon.

The third man was an innocent bystander, she said, who witnessed the assault on her escorts and who offered his services as a witness.

TO FILE CHARGES.

As a result of these statements, Charles McFaun, of No. 12 Allston street, Somerville, the girl's step brother, and Samuel Bosky of No. 25 Stobie avenue, say they will file charges with the Commissioner Wilson against two uniformed Back Bay policemen and two plain clothes men of the same division.

Miss Dupont, who is visiting with her foster mother, Mrs. McFaun, at No. 12 Allston street, Somerville, was taken from her escorts by two policemen after she had been taken ill while walking on Huntington avenue.

Bosky and Miss Dupont entered a restaurant just at the closing hour. The door was soon afterwards locked and two policemen demanded admittance.

"They took me by the arm and dragged me out of the place," Miss Dupont said, "and commenced to haul me to the corner. Mr. Bosky and my step-brother, Charles McFaun, told them that they would get a machine and take me home.

FREED BY COURT.

"The policemen would not listen to them and drove them away. Then Charlie said 'Please let her go with me officer, she lives with my mother, I'll see her home safely.' One of the policemen turned and hit him in the face and cut his lip. Some other policemen cam running up and one of them hit Mr. Bosky."

Miss Dupont was arraigned in Municipal Court on a charge of drunkenness and the case placed on file.

HIGH WINDS DELAY CHANNEL SWIMMERS

Dover, England, Sept. 7 (By the Associated Press).—High northeast winds and the low temperature of the water prevented Henry Sullivan of Lowell, Mass., and Walter Patterson of Bridgeport, Ct., from attempting the swimming of the English Channel today. Charles Toth of Boston, who failed in the effort to negotiate the channel early this week, announced that he might try it again if conditions were favorable. Sam Richards of Boston, who started out with Toth but collapsed after swimming for two hours, has left for the United States.

"DEAF" BEGGAR FINDS VOICE AND FLEES

Webster, Sept. 7.—Silence was golden for a mendicant who was a familiar figure in this town, with a sign on his chest reading, "I am deaf and dumb." He reaped a fine harvest, until he was either visited with a miracle or attacked with absent-mindedness. In a loud voice he asked one of the citizens to give him some money to help his widowed mother. The man motioned to a policeman. The deaf and dumb nap proved that he was neither deaf nor dumb. He made a hasty exit.

WANT TO BUY A CHURCH? READ ON!

Clinton, Sept. 7.—One perfectly good Methodist Episcopal church, landmark on High street for seventy-five years, is for sale. Persons wishing a church are advised to send bids to the Rev. D. Stewart Smith, the pastor, who values the edifice at $15,000. The money accruing from the sale will be applied toward the erection of a new church at No. 72 Walnut street, just back of the town hall.

CHURCHES TO MAKE OWN MOVIE REELS

New York, Sept. 7.—Organization of a motion picture company to produce and release pictures to Protestant churches was announced today by the Christian Herald. The organization will make "clean pictures for clean people," the announcement said.

A fifty-two-reel production made in Palestine five years ago at a cost of $2,000,000 will be released next month.

WOMAN STRUCK AND ROBBED IN LEXINGTON

Mrs. Frank Holmes of Mt. Vernon street, Somerville, was struck in the face and robbed of $4 while walking on Follen road, East Lexington. Her assailant was a young man about nineteen years old, tall, slim and wore a light gray suit which was thoroughly wet. He had his neck collar turned up at the time, and made a quick getaway. The police have been notified.

Freed by Court

"FLAPPER" CHIEF TRAPS MASHER

New York, Sept. 7.—Fred Christoff, chief of police of Highland Falls, near West Point, had received complaints from young ladies saying a "bad soldier was annoying them."

Disguised as a flapper, the chief strolled along the country highway and was surprised when a man in uniform threw his arms around his waist.

"I'm a married woman," said the chief. But his declaration only made matters worse.

"Why I don't even know you," the chief added and when the soldier continued his advances the chief ended it all with an uppercut to the man's jaw.

As a result, Corporal Albert Hoff woke up in the village jail, charged with disorderly conduct.

HOPE FADES FOR ENTRAPPED MINERS

Jackson, Cal., Sept. 7—Hopes that the buried miners in the Argonaut shaft would be reached by rescue crews, which have been tunnelling feverishly since a week ago Sunday night, in time to bring out alive the entrapped miners faded after it became known early today that rescuers burrowing from the 3,600-foot level of the Kennedy workings have yet to pierce 325 feet of cave-in debris and timbers and 9½ feet of solid rock.

Unless better conditions are encountered, it was believed by some mining experts here that it will be closer to thirteen than to seven days before the task is accomplished.

TYPIST HUMS, IS FIRED; BOY KILLS FATHER

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 7.—Held on a charge of first degree murder, Roy B. Garvey, who shot and killed his father, J. W. Garvey, is in jail awaiting preliminary hearing September 23.

The shooting, which occurred in the real estate office operated by father and son, is said to have followed a quarrel over the discharge of Mrs. Helen Groh, a stenographer in the younger Garvey's employ.

According to Miss Florence Sebur, a clerk in the office, the elder Garvey had discharged Mrs. Groh because she had been humming and whistling. Shortly after Mrs. Groh was discharged the younger partner entered the office and learned of his father's action. He went into his father's private office and a few minutes later six shots were heard.

The younger Garvey then went to police headquarters and surrendered. He told police there had been a long standing quarrel between him and his father over the alleged mistreatment of his mother and that when he objected to Mrs. Groh's discharge his father reached for a revolver.

GUEST TELLS OF JOHNSON SHOOTING

Plattsburg, N. Y., Sept. 7.—Miss Ann Luther, motion picture actress of Great Neck, L. I., who was a guest at Jack Clifford's camp last Thursday when Albert Johnson, Peggy March's husband, accidentally shot himself, today gave her version of the shooting. She said:

"I had just retired to my room, which was next to that occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Johnson. I heard Peggy scream and rushed over to her room just as Mr. Clifford got there. Peggy screamed that her husband had shot himself and promptly fainted. We had her carried over to my room and put to bed. All the rest of the night I attended her, aided by our friend, Mrs. William Ely of New York. I distinctly heard Mr. Johnson state that he had shot himself."

Johnson, now a patient at the Champlain Valley Hospital, was reported to be out of danger today, his abdominal wound being well on the way to a complete healing.

HOME NOT READY, ROYAL WEDDING OFF

Copenhagen, Sept. 7. — Crown Prince Frederick has postponed his marriage to Princess Olga, niece of King Constantine of Greece, until early next year.

The ceremony was originally set for this Autumn, but it was found the castle at Amalienborg, in which the young couple will live, could not be finished in time. The structure was formerly occupied by the Dowager Empress of Russia, sister of Queen Alexandra, and is undergoing extensive alterations.

Coolidge as Rival of Races Ranks Below Zero

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 7.—O, time! O, change! Vice-President Calvin Coolidge, "the Sphinx," a short time ago the idol of the West as the exponent of law and order, was booed because he talked too much.

A crowd of 20,000 attending the Minnesota State Fair forced the Vice-President to quit in the middle of a set speech because they wanted to see horse races.

A bleacherite minimized the act to a considerable extent by informing "Silent Cal" that he would get their votes, but right now they must have horse trots.

WIFE NO. 1 AND NO. 2 TO SHARE FORTUNE

Chicago Sept. 7.—Mrs. Lottie Bock, mate of John Bock, wealthy Californian, in the days of his poverty in Chicago, today was a step nearer a share of his fortune wrested from the gold fields of Alaska after he deserted her, to later bestow the comforts of wealth on a new wife, Eleanor.

Sought by Wife No. 2, who insisted that the woman whose place she took, should share in Bock's fortune, the first wife, found after a wide search in the obscure village of Dresser Junction, Wis., was with her hearthstone successor.

The two wives met, according to Attorney John J. Duffy, in his office where preliminary arrangements for dividing the Bock fortune were made. With her search ended, Mrs. Eleanor Bock now shuns the publicity upon which she depended to find the companion of John Bock's lean years.

The two wives came to Chicago together, Attorney Duffy said, and after the first conference in his office, went into hiding until another meeting today. Bock readily agreed to Eleanor's plan and as for an Alaska gold will do it, is ready to pay his debt to the girl he left behind when he staked his claims in Klondike, years ago.

WHIPPLE AND GASTON IN CLOSE RACE, LATEST FIGURES SHOW

CHARLESTOWN STRAW VOTE AIDS THE LAWYER

interesting of all the election contests.

The incoming returns seem to indicate that Charlestown will "carry on" for Whipple in much the same way as those Curley and Lomasney districts which caused his adherents to utter a whoop of delight.

CHARLESTOWN FIGURES.

Without passing on the merits of the case, we will hand you an argument that has come from the Whipple camp after the reading of the straw vote returns. They say that the strongest Gaston returns come from the business district, where Democrats are usually in a minority, while the Whipple strength is apparent in Roxbury, the West and North Ends and Charlestown, where the solid bulk of Democratic strength is most worth while.

On the other hand, the Gaston folks say a vote is a vote, regardless from whence it comes.

You will analyze those statements and the figures for yourselves.

Charlestown also showed a surprising interest in the candidacy of Joseph B. Ely, former district attorney of one of the great districts beyond the Connecticut. The Bunker Hill street section, where he received twenty-four votes to the twenty-two cast for John F. Fitzgerald, is one of the few sections yet wrested away from the former Mayor in the race for Democratic Governor.

Mr. Foss there ran a healthy third, receiving seventeen votes. Five friends remembered Mayor Peter F. Sullivan of Worcester, who first broke into the business world as a Boston American newsie many years ago.

Joseph C. Pelletier there received thirty-five straw votes, just two more than the aggregate of all others in the field for district attorney. Here, again, District Attorney O'Brien showed elements of increasing strength. He ran second to the former district attorney. The vote: Pelletier, 35; O'Brien, 15; Ford, 6; Foley, 6; Donaghue, 3; Patron, 2; Walsh, 2. On the Republican side of the sheet O'Brien made his usual walkaway: O'Brien, 16; Cox, 6; Gloag, 2; Patron, 1.

COX VS. ALLEN.

Governor Cox and Attorney-General Allen fought out in Charlestown the close and torrid race which has seemed to mark their every contest among Republicans in Democratic strongholds. The figures tell the story of their neck-and-neck struggle: Cox, 14; Allen, 13.

Assistant Attorney-General Jay R. Benton is again polling the strength which marked the early returns and which seemed to indicate a runaway for him until Harold D. Wilson startled the polls by the show of a vote-getting quality that waked some of the old-timers out of their trance.

Charlestown gave eleven for Benton to four for Wilson, and East Boston, from Maverick square into Meridian street, gave him an eleven to-five that is a strong lead when the total number cast is considered.

The to-date figures in the Republican scramble for Attorney-General are as follows:

Benton	341
Bodfish	79
Cavanagh	95
Donnell	49
Drury	56
Wilson	343

Henry Cabot Lodge now has a grand total of 581 to 193 for former Speaker Joseph Walker, who runs as a protest against Mr. Lodge's activities on the tariff, the League, prohibitio nand a host of ther things.

VOTE FOR GOVERNOR.

The total votef or Governor is:

Allen	294
Cox	322

O'Brien's Republican vote for district attorney has reached a grand total of 553 and among the Republicans is exceeded only by the 581 cast for Senator Lodge. Solomon A. G. Cox has 76 for district attorney, Republican, Ralph Wardlaw Gloag has 24 and William J. Patron, who, like Mr. O'Brien, is running in both praties, has 52.

The Gaston-Whipple total, with the bulk of Charlestown remaining to be counted, is:

Gaston	438
Whipple	413

John Jackson Walsh's name has so far commended itself to 192 Democratic voters in the straw ballot. There are fifty-two who to date prefer that Professor Dulas Lore Sharp should be the Democratic nominee for United States Senator.

At the risk of becoming a common scold, we are going to ask you to be on your guard against the trickster who would attempt to capitalize the ballot for his own interest.

REPORT FAKIRS.

The gentlemen in politics are reading these returns with an eagle eye. The returns mean much to them. Some of them may have overzealous friends or practiced workers who wouldn't hesitate to "pull a trick."

So, if someone calls at your place of business and offers to install The American Straw Ballot, please get into touch with The American at once. Ask for the Straw Ballot Department. We promise quick service.

The chances are 100 to 1 against our installing a permanent, fixed voting booth in any one place. You know the risk. The friends or workers of any one candidate might rush the place at once, in the hope of getting in as many votes as possible for that candidate before the poll was closed. Such would not be a fair expression of public sentiment. The readers of The American could tell at a glance that the returns from that district would be useless in gauging public sentiment.

The canvassers are sent out under private instructions every day. Not even they know where the day's work is to be done. They pick up the ballots and ballot boxes, are given the word where to go and are off. They do the work as quickly as possible and return, to obtain new assignments.

Now that we understand each other perfectly, let's take up the day's returns.

SULLIVAN SHOWS STRONG.

The canvassers went first into East Boston, in the section from Maverick square toward Jeffries Point from which the voters in the past have sent such sterling fighters as Tom Niland, Mike Murphy and Menasseh Bradley to protect their interests on The Hill.

In that spot was found a pronounced sentiment for Peter F. Sullivan for Governor. In fact, the returns show Worcester's Mayor to have carried his first Boston district over John F. Fitzgerald. The poll was: Sullivan, 95; Fitzgerald, 22; Foss 11; Ely, 10.

WHIPPLE GAINS IN WARD 8.

Attorney-General J. Weston Allen also figured conspicuously in that island section. Of the eleven G. O. P. votes cast there, seven expressed a preference for the Attorney-General.

Here again we find Harold D. Wilson running neck and neck with Mr. Benton and Joseph Walker polling four to the six votes cast for the Nahant moderator. Mr. Pelletier, Mr. Gaston and Mr. O'Brien, the latter on the Republican side of it, will read the returns with satisfaction.

Sherman L. Whipple will do the smiling when he looks at the figures from Bowdoin square and Cambridge street, in Mr. Lomasney's ward, where the canvassers ventured a second time. Twenty-three men and women marked Democratic ballots there and twenty-one of them waited until they reached the name of Whipple before placing the much sought X.

Mr. Pelletier got sixteen against the nine of all his opponents combined. And Mr. Fitzgerald again took his place in the forefront of the Democratic aspirants for Governor, Fitzgerald, 20; Foss, 3; Ely, 2; Sullivan, 0.

NOT A VOIDED BALLOT.

Some reference was made the other day to the aptitude for voting of the folks in Ward 5. In reiteration of that statement it can be pointed out that not a voided ballot has been cast in the West End in this straw voting. They have marked with an accuracy that might force some of our Beacon street citizens to shame.

Benton, 9; Wilson, 9, said the Republican voters in Martin's ward. Who were caught by the busy canvassers, Cox, with 16, and Allen, with 12, showed how sentiment is divided there on the battle royal for Republican Governor. You, of course, have already remarked that the biggest fighting speeches yet made by the Governor and by the attorney-general were in the famous old Tenth Congressional District.

The same district showed Mr O'Brien as the choice of the Republicans for district attorney. For Senator: Lodge 19, Walker 7.

TREMONT ST. FOR O'BRIEN.

The Democratic voters along Tremont street gave to Mr. O'Brien an expression of their desire for his election. He there led Mr. Pelletier, 17 to 13. Mr. Ford, with eight, and Mr. Foley, with five, came next in that order. Mr. O'Brien there received twenty-two of the Republican thirty-four votes for district attorney.

TEXAS TO FIGHT KU KLUX KLAN AT POLLS

San Antonio, Tex., Sept. 7.—Organization of a Texas Anti-Ku Klux Klan political party will be pushed, it was declared today, as a result of the refusal yesterday of the Democratic State Convention to adopt resolutions opposing the klan organization. A call was to be issued today for an anti-klan convention to be held in Dallas.

PROSPERITY AHEAD, DECLARES LODGE

Springfield, Sept. 7.—Asserting that the country is entering an unprecedented period of prosperity, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge declared that 2,000,000 men have obtained employment in the past ten months and that the government has reduced the gross debt by $2,500,000 in three years, during a speech before the Springfield Automobile Club.

CROKER CASTLE IS PUT UNDER GUARD

Dublin, Sept. 7.—The gates of Glen Cairn castle, home of the late Richard Croker, are under guard, following receipts of news that Richard Croker, Jr., had come to Ireland to live. Friends of the family explained that the guards were not due to the presence of Mr. Croker, but to the turbulent state of affairs in Ireland.

LAMB GLANDS TO MAKE VENERABLE DOGS GAY AS PUPPIES

SERUM TO PREVENT RABIES

Electrical Treatment to Take Rheumatism Out of Rover's System

At last genus canine has caught up with genus feline.

For years cats have had it on dogs because they have nine lives.

Now every dog can have his day, and then, by means of a simple little operation, can have his day all over again.

The Animal Relief Hospital of No. 41 Lansdowne street, Back Bay, which begins its career the middle of next week, announces that senile dogs can have their puppy days restored by means of a gland operation similar to that which has given young ideas to many an old human.

Such operations, the factotums of the new institution announce, are to be performed at the hospital for the rejuvenation of Rover. The procedure is to remove the thyroid gland of a lamb and implant it in the dog.

Experiments have been in process for some time. Thirty dogs passed to their ancestors, martyrs to glandular science, before a successful operation was performed. A dog which before the operation showed no interest in life was transformed by means of the gland operation into a playful pup.

The new hospital is to be conducted by Dr. Albert J. Welch and Dr. Frank J. Flanagan, two of Boston's most eminent veterinarians. Dr. Flanagan was formerly of the Massachusetts S. P. C. A.

In addition to the gland operations, the hospital will specialize in Pasteur treatment of dogs for prevention of rabies. This method, first used in Japan, is said to have brought excellent results. By means of a serum the dog is inoculated against rabies.

The institution offers also electrical treatment of dogs for rheumatism, a free clinic from 7 to 4 p. m. daily, when dog-owners may bring their pets for diagnosis as to what's ailing 'em, and charity wards for dogs whose owners are unable to pay for treatment.

WOBURN MAYOR AGAINST JITNEYS

In a letter to the Woburn City Council, Mayor Bernard J. Golden stated that he didn't believe that licenses should be granted to jitneys that intend to compete with street railways. He refused to sanction the granting of a license to the Woburn and Reading Bus Line, Inc., and New York will help him out.

Daylight Saving Period Ends on September 24

Sunday, September 24, is the day. Don't forget it or there'll be mixups. On that day all clocks in the State must be set back one hour, and local business will once more join hands with the railroads on standard time.

BELLHOP MUST FIND MAN TO KEEP JOB

An exciting chase through the hotels of Boston, a mad race to an outbound train at the South Station and a trip to Providence on the trail of a gentleman crook, who made his getaway from the American House without paying his bill, was the experience of Raynald Robillard, a bellboy at the American House, who to-day asked the American to help him find the man.

Raynald Robillard

Robillard, who is the mainstay of his family, expressed his fear that Saturday would find him without a job in view of the chagrin of his employers over his failure to catch the man who registered at the American House as "William Hodgers of New York."

SEARCHING HOTELS.

The police of Providence and New York have been notified and are conducting a rigid search of the hotels for a man answering to Hodgers' description.

According to the police, Hodgers rang for a boy to have his bag carried down from his room to a waiting taxi. He declared to Robillard, the bellboy who served him, that he was not checking out and that he would return to the hotel.

Upon learning that the man had not paid his bill, Robillard went frantically in search of him, tracing Hodgers to another hotel and thence to the South Station. Through information from a porter, Robillard located his man on a Providence train.

At Providence Hodgers agreed to call the clerk of the hotel and "explain," but tricked the young bellboy into believing that the hotel clerk had been satisfied with his explanation.

NO WARRANT.

"I had no warrant to arrest the man and of course I had to let him go when he said the clerk had accepted his explanation," said Robillard. "I lost my man and now I'm going to lose my job."

"Find the man." Is the only remark his employers make in dismissing him, and Robillard is in hopes that bellboys in Providence and New York will help him out.

Society Folk Homeward Bound After Summer Season, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

WITH the Summer nearly over, society is slowly returning home from all manner of places.

Some went over for visits with friends in London, others for a bit of Paris gayety; others for the Mediterranean cruise, which has become so popular of late; while others still answered the lure of the Orient, but one and all are gradually coming back for the Winter season.

At this moment, Mrs. George von L. Meyer of Hamilton is on the high seas, having sailed from Italy on Monday. This very distinguished Boston matron—she was formerly Miss Alice Appleton—has been spending the Summer in Rome with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Giuseppe Brambilla. I understand she plans to spend a long Fall season in Hamilton.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Paine, who are honeymooning abroad, are now motoring from Paris to Venice and are expected to return by the end of this month to the Paine estate in Manchester. The marriage of the young people was solemnized early in June at King's Chapel, and was one of the most important ceremonials of the season.

Miss Katherine Abbott, older daughter of the Gordon Abbotts, sails from England today bound for home. With her are Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. deForest and Miss Julia deForest of New York, with whom she motored through England and Scotland. Katherine Abbott is a tall, stately girl, of the distinctly "Bostonese" type. Her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Bacon Lothrop (Eleanor Abbott) left the Shore last week for a trip to Maine, and are at present sojourning at the Isleboro Inn, Dark Harbor.

THE brother-in-law and sister of Richard Paine, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Metcalf (Elizabeth Paine) have concluded their stay at the Paine estate in Manchester, and have moved into their new home at No. 12 Louisberg square. I understand that the interior of the house has been done over by Charles Cummings, a cousin, and that it is as charming a domicile as the heart of any youthful matron might desire.

It was a bout a year and a half ago that Elizabeth Paine and Thomas Newell Metcalf, Harvard '04 man, were married very quietly at the Brookline home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Treat Paine, 2nd. The bride had returned only a short time before the wedding from a Winter spent in Paris, where she studied at the Sorbonne.

Mrs. Metcalf's father is just now cruising about on board the Chickadee, while Mrs. Paine went to Dublin for the week and to attend the Cabot-Holt wedding, which attracted so many of the Hub's social who's who.

AMONG the jolliest members of the younger married set who make merry along the North Shore are the George von L. Meyers, Jr. (Frances Saltonstall). These interesting young people have entertained extensively at their place in Hamilton, and only last week they had a gay party, which included the Hendricks H. Whitmans, the Reggie Fosters (Frances Hoar), Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Prince, Jr., the Umberto Colettis, Tom Blumer and Maxwell Norman.

The former Frances Saltonstall is one of the most talented matrons of the smart set, and she has composed the music for a number of the Vincent Club's annual shows.

IT must be rather hard for Mrs. Sewell Fessenden to see her very attractive daughters leave the family fireside one by one. Very shortly there will be only Louise Fessenden left, for the youngest daughter, Rose Fessenden, is to be married this Fall.

The first to leave the parental nest was the oldest daughter, tall, slender and dark-haired Caroline Fessenden, who is now Mrs. Oliver Ames, Jr. A few years later came the marriage of vivacious Harriet Fessenden—one of the most popular girls of her year—to Freddie Busk. For some time the young couple made their home in New York, but now they have bought a home in Boston, which, of course, was very glad news indeed to their many friends here. The former Harriet Fessenden, by the way, led the charming Balloon Dance, which was such an attractive number of "Now and Then," the show given this year by the Vincent Club.

In the same show her sister, Louise Fessenden, took the part of the leading lady, and there were many who proclaimed enthusiastically upon the loveliness of her voice. Louise Fessenden is a very dainty looking girl. She has light brown hair, deep blue eyes, with very dark lashes, and a very pleasing smile. Her gowns are always attractive and becoming.

Now the question is—when will Louise, too, spread her wings and fly away?

10,000 Made Citizens

Washington, Sept. 7.—Nearly ten thousand aliens became naturalized citizens during July. Labor department figures credit Italy with 1,364; Great Britain and possessions, 1,132; Russia, 953; Poland, 928, and Germany, 681.

IRISH PEACE TO BE DISCUSSED BY DAIL

Dublin, Sept. 7.—The Irish Independent said that the rumor that Griffith had been poisoned was circulated in Dublin for a week or more.

"It is totally untrue," said the newspaper. "This is definitely established."

Dublin, Sept. 7 (By International News Service).—Peace proposals to end the warfare between Irish Republicans and the Free State forces will be proposed when the Dail Eireann meets Saturday, it was learned today.

William T. Cosgrove probably will lead the Free Staters in debate, while Eamon De Valera, despite reports of his capture, is expected to head the anti-treaty side.

The report that De Valera and Erskine Childers were captured is doubted here. It is believed that the Free State forces have had numerous opportunities to capture the Republican chief, but refrained for fear of "martyrizing" him.

Erskine Childers, chief aide to De Valera, has been wounded.

A strong movement is growing up among followers of the late Arthur Griffith and Michael Collins that if Erskine Childers is really a prisoner, as reported, he be deported to England. He is said to be a native of England.

The Dail Cabinet held a night meeting to draw up a slate for the parliamentary meeting Saturday. It is understood that Cosgrave has been picked to succeed Arthur Griffith as president of the Dail. According to word from London, Premier Lloyd George expects Cosgrave to go to that city for a conference after the meeting of the Dail.

Deny Arrests in Griffith "Poisoning"

London, Sept. 7.—Rumors in Dublin that a doctor and two nurses had been arrested in connection with the death of Arthur Griffith are devoid of foundation, according to the Exchange Telegraph correspondent in the Irish capital. He adds that the story has been circulated in Dublin for the last week.

A Dublin despatch to the Associated Press on September 1 said the rumors that Mr. Griffith was poisoned, which were prevalent at the time of his funeral, were again being circulated. The physicians who attended the Dail president, however, stated positively that he died from natural causes, probably from heart disease.

It was admitted by one of the doctors that there was some talk of exhuming the body for an autopsy.

Cork-Dublin Wire Service Crippled

London, Sept. 7 (By the Associated Press).—Interruption of telegraphic communication between London and Cork and reported interference between Dublin and Cork has led to the belief by some of the London newspapers today that events of great moment are happening in the Cork region, especially since fighting was reported there during the night.

EVERYONE WILL OWN A GLIDER, CURTISS SAYS

Port Washington, L. I., Sept. 7.—Just as a boy flies a kite by running along the ground until it reaches a high altitude, so is it possible to fly a boat.

This was proved by Glenn H. Curtiss, marking a new development in aviation, when he made two flights of 45 seconds each in a marine glider. As the result of the successful test, Mr. Curtiss says that men and women will fly from house to house like birds.

The flights today were made under adverse conditions, in that there was no breeze. Just as a kite flies better in a wind it is with a flying boat glider, without a motor or propeller, which Mr. Curtiss calls a gallipiane.

Mr. Curtiss made it very plain that he did not think the sailplane would take the place of the airplane with motors. Mr. Curtiss suggested that a small motor might be placed in the glider, thus making it the "motorcycle of the air."

The sight of hundreds of land and sea sailplanes flying in flocks like birds is to be expected in a few years, Mr. Curtiss predicted.

BOY, SHOT, WALKS TO HOSPITAL AND DIES

Chicago, Sept. 7.—Howard Garrity fatally wounded by an "unloaded revolver," walked several blocks to a hospital, proceeded unflinchingly, into the operating room and then died while surgeons probed for the bullet. He was shot by Peter Miku, also fifteen, while they were playing with the gun, which Petar had found in the home of a neighbor.

LA FOLLETTE TO TAKE HELM OF PROGRESSIVES

By WILLIAM HARD.

Copyright, 1922, by Cosmopolitan News Service.

Chicago, Sept 7—Advices from Wisconsin combined with advices from Washington show that chaos of mood and almost utter confusion of policy in Washington is going to have a natural consequence of the first magnitude. The formation of an avowedly organized progressive group in the United States Senate is now in sight.

There have been progressive individual Senators but there has been no cooperation between them. The farm bloc was not a grouping of progressives for progressive purposes but a grouping of progressives and non-progressives for certain agricultural purposes. The farm bloc works for the farmer. What now becomes possible is a bloc working for the whole country from the progressive standpoint.

LaFollette has been cleansed of all the silly charges which made him out to be the agent of some special nationality such as the Norwegian or the German. This victory by LaFollette eliminates the war as a live issue. Even LaFollette's speech in favor of the League of Nations was treated as the wrong and as credited to representatives of anyplace except out of any intelligible line of progressive tactical alignment.

The awakening of LaFollette had to happen before there could be any organized progressive group in the Senate. Such a group without LaFollette would have been ridiculous. But such a group with LaFollette was simply evil—was impossible. Now this situation has happened and is ushered in.

Young Bob LaFollette tells me over the telephone from Madison that the Senator now looks only about fifty-five years of age. He has lost some twenty years in a day. But oh, what gray hairs he is very will grow on some other statesman's heads in Washington!

DISCUSS LOWER PRICE AT MILK CONFERENCE

A conference in an endeavor to reach an agreement to reduce the retail price of milk at least 1 cent took place in the office of the Suffolk County district attorney between Assistant District Attorney Henry P. Fielding and representatives of milk distributors and milk producers, the farmers.

Tuesday last the Grand Jury heard the testimony of John Whiting of the D. Whiting & Sons milk concern. John F. Gaffney, counsel for the Whiting concern and several other milk firms, appeared at the hearing.

It is understood the milk concerns have finally opened their books to the public accountant, Edwin L. Pride, for examination as to how they have conducted business and acquired profits during the past few years.

One milk distributing and contracting concern, it is understood cleared nearly $1,000,000 net last year.

District Attorney O'Brien is anxious to have the Grand Jury determine whether there is a conspiracy between the milk contractors and distributors to maintain high prices.

THREATENS ANOTHER ATTEMPT

Donnie Harrison, Artist Who Sought Success in Vain, Is Determined to Die

New York, Sept. 7.—Donnie Harrison probably will live. They told her so today in Bellevue Hospital when she came to, after a night in which an abused physique had struggled vehemently with the poison she had swallowed.

When she took that poison, Donnie did not expect ever again to know life. When she found today that she was still in the world and was told she probably would pull through, she moaned her dismay.

"I'm even a failure at death. But I'll do it again and again until I die."

WAS DRUG PATIENT.

Donnie Harrison is the last of a person who came from Detroit to win fame as an artist and to conquer the dramatic stage. Instead, she met failure at every turn. She became a drug addict and, in notes she left, was even disappointed with her prospects of being a good wife.

As she became conscious in her room at No. 64½ Madison avenue, the gas she had held from the jets spurting. The smoke attracted a neighbor who burst into the room and rescued the girl.

In Bellevue today Miss Harrison was conscious for twenty minutes. She said she had taken veronal. She tried to commit suicide and would not comment on the suggestion she had married with her mother, Mrs. Marie Harrison, of Detroit.

COAST TO COAST TRIP IN DAY BIG BOON

Washington, Sept. 7.—The one-day, coast to coast flight of Lieutenant James H. Doolittle of the army air service had tremendous significance today for aeronautical engineers. It means Quicker movement of troops from the Atlantic to the Pacific in a military emergency. The ability in hops like fast movement of munitions and supplies.

Quicker mail and express delivery in less than twenty-four hours.

Lightning delivery of important financial papers.

A business man in a hurry can travel from the Atlantic seaboard to the Pacific coast in a fraction of the four days now required.

A new era in coast to coast shipments of perishable freight and small live stock, saving time and money.

The saving in money when a one-day air service becomes general, as it soon must become, is incalculable, even in the one detail of bank payments.

Officers of the army air service, the naval bureau of aeronautics and the National Aeronautical Association were jubilant today over the flight. It was the fifth attempt in as many days and the first to succeed.

Lieutenant Doolittle himself bore the expense of the flight, mainly for the reason that curtailed appropriations for the army air service made the project prohibitive for the service.

He used a De Havilland bombing plane reconstructed under his own supervision and fitted it with an extra gasoline tank. It is now up over the transcontinental mail route to the exclusion of all others. A 400 horsepower Liberty motor was also fitted for the strain of a long sustained flight, was used.

BIG INCREASE IN SHIPBUILDING

An increase of 35 per cent in shipbuilding since July 1 is shown in the figures of the American Bureau of Shipping, giving totals of ocean going steel tonnage under construction and contracted for in America on and as of September 1.

Although the figures report a substantial upturn the quantity of work on hand in the yards is not up to their capacity, which was greatly expanded during the war, as a fact.

On September 1, 1922, there were under construction or contracted for 25 seagoing vessels aggregating 156,300 gross tons, representing an addition from the July 1 figures of 16 vessels of 111,000 tons. And from January 1 figures of 22 vessels of 113,000 tons. Rivers and harbor craft on September 1 totaled 31 vessels of 37,950 gross tons as compared with the July 1 total of 31 vessels of 47,950 gross tons.

American Woolen Crosses Par in Strong New York Market; Many Highs for Year

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

(Now investigating conditions in the West.)

About the biggest question of the day for the West, indeed for the whole country, is

Will the world be able to consume America's bumper crop at prices reasonably profitable to the farmers?

Frankly I feel very [illegible] saying on this point as to [illegible] in the grain growing states.

Said one Western farmer: "Last winter at New Orleans I met a number of other folks of means. A number of them are standing. They have wheat stacks and [illegible] They simply refuse to sell at twenty-five to thirty cents per bushel.

But what good is [illegible] know it? There's no [illegible]

I remarked the other week that while wheat prices had declined slightly since a month ago, and while Chicago and [illegible] prices were not so very badly [illegible] considered

He immediately and quickly replied: "These figures [illegible] as Chicago and [illegible] are here. We can't sell our wheat here at [illegible] cents a bushel. [illegible] we are not going to sell it. [illegible] if we should [illegible] at Chicago we would [illegible] get [illegible]

If we should [illegible] more of [illegible] possibly take a [illegible] price for our wheat, we would feel [illegible] about it. We have been carrying our [illegible] for [illegible] and [illegible] for [illegible] years, and we could turn [illegible] we propose not [illegible] we would [illegible] and spend a [illegible]

Why would it not be [illegible] a bill authorizing [illegible] to the War Finance Corporation to help to market American [illegible] abroad?

• • •

The facts briefly are:

The United States will have [illegible] a large quantity of wheat available for export.

Europe could [illegible] the wheat. But Europe at the moment does not have the money necessary to [illegible] wheat we have [illegible]

[illegible] could not [illegible] be made whereby the United States would [illegible] selling in competition with Europe [illegible] to [illegible] result of [illegible] our national [illegible] would [illegible] pledged [illegible] its assistance [illegible]

Of course, no one wants to see the War Finance Corporation, or any similar [illegible] used in existence a day longer than [illegible] necessary. Not does anyone want to see [illegible] gamble [illegible] part in business.

But [illegible] would any [illegible] the citizen desire to see [illegible] of agricultural population [illegible] to farm? But [illegible] hardships could possibly be averted [illegible] by no one [illegible] a [illegible] many [illegible] that we will have [illegible] and [illegible] forced property [illegible] a [illegible] city if our crops cannot be [illegible] are of no [illegible] like [illegible] city prices to the growers.

If the [illegible] question here made before the [illegible] it might [illegible] to draw attention to [illegible] important matter and [illegible] some effective action.

GOLF VICTORIES WELL EARNED--OUIMET

By FRANCIS OUIMET.

The victors earned their places in the third round entirely through the soundness of their golf and those of us who passed out of the picture can attribute our defeats to the weakness of our opponents.

The first match of the day was that between Jesse Sweetser and Will Hunter, the British star, entered from the Westchester Biltmore Club in New York. Sweetser has been playing fine golf all year and he was looked upon to give Hunter a great battle. This he did, too, for he carried the fight all the way, leaving few if any openings for Hunter to take advantage of all of which kept the latter struggling to beat holes and par figures all day long.

Sweetser ended the morning round five up, having gone around in 73 with aces at the third and last holes, both of which are par fours. This, of course, shows the strength of Sweetser's golf, and, keeping at it after lunch, he ran neck home a seven and six winner.

Jesse Guilford had an old score to settle with "Reggie" Lewis for a defeat Lewis piled upon him at the Apawamis Club earlier in the season. From the moment Lewis topped his first tee shot until the match concluded he was fighting against a mean passer, who was out to win and win quickly.

Guilford is a wonderful man on and around the greens. He ranks alongside of such masters as Jerome Travers and Walter J. Travis in this respect. He never looked like missing a putt, and in the pouring rain he shifted from his putter to a driving iron once he got onto the greens, and Reggie said he thought big Jesse could put even better with a driving iron after seeing him coolly hole a few ten and fifteen foot putts with this club.

Guilford, as I have been saying right along, is looking better than ever, and the more I see him play the more convinced I am that he is a finer golfer now than he was at St. Louis last year.

Billy McPhail's Victory Should Not Be Surprise

A surprise to some was the victory of Billy McPhail over Harrison Johnston. Little is known of McPhail's game, save locally, but I should like to say that he is a splendid golfer. Years ago he and I played on the same golf team at school and he was considered a mighty fine player.

When he finished school he gave up the game temporarily for business, but, similar to a runner with the last two or three years he has resumed his golf and has incidentally been carving quite a name for himself hereabouts.

Anybody who can beat Harrison Johnston is capable of beating others and his victory must not be considered in the nature of a fluke, for he won handily four up and three to play.

One of the main struggles of the day was that in which the two Fownes, Bowen and Gardiner, opposed each other. Little Bowen sailed away from the first well at the start and was three holes to the good. From then on it was a dour battle.

Big Bob Got Smooth Strokes Working After Slow Start

Big Bob got his smooth strokes working after the slow start, worked in a muzzle or two and stood on the home tee with a lead of a hole. Three putts cost him the last, so of the half way post the two were deadlocked. They fought grimly on first one and then the other dashing to the front.

Finally the little Bob probably sensing a rush on the part of the Big Bob let out a notch himself and by playing the last seven holes in even fours he established a three hole lead, which brought the match to a close on the sixteenth green in Bowen's favor.

Chick Evans' victory over Bill Fownes was of equal importance but the manner of it was quite a surprise. These two have fought many golf matches out on the links and I suppose the wins and losses have been about even for each. Chick played superbly in the morning and Fownes felt sort of pressed to think he was no more than three down with five holes left to be played. From then on Bill erred often, Chick never, with the result that Chick won each one of the last five holes to give him a lead of eight holes.

Evans Was Around 70, Which Is Unbeatable Golf

Evans was around in 70 which, is unbeatable golf. At the turn in the afternoon he had added two more so when Fownes was defeated on and nine it represented the biggest defeat he has ever had recorded against him. For all of that he is a wonderful sportsman and though out of further competition he is a credit to the game wherever it is played.

Rudolph Knepper the Sioux City golfer was the unfortunate of not being relegated to the spectators' list for the remainder of the week. He was simply superb. We had a fine match all day. In the morning the play was exceedingly close, with Knepper doing most of the forcing and me continually in the position of having to pull him back either one hole or two.

At times I succeeded in bringing him back to even terms but he was not to be denied. He led by two holes at the turn in the morning. We were square at the twelfth. He won the thirteenth, where I took three putts. I won the fourteenth with a birdie to again square accounts, after which we halved all the last holes, and he won it.

Starting our afternoon round he took the third hole, which increased his lead to two holes, since we halved the other eight. A long putt further handicapped my chances when Knepper dropped one for a three on the tenth. The end came on the eighteenth when he stymied me, but this stymie had no effect upon the hole because his approach putt was stone dead and he would have won the match on the green without the stymie.

Sensation of the Day Was the Tolley-Aulbach Match

But far and away the sensation of the day was the Tolley-Aulbach match. Knepper and myself passed directly in back of them and Aulbach did some of the most phenomenal putting imaginable. Tolley was out in 44 and the match was even. Then we turned back and forth until coming to the seventeenth, Tolley was one up. He promptly stood back and watched Aulbach hole two long putts to finish one up at the end of a gruelling rush.

I was told at a much time that Aulbach had holed eight long putts that varied in length from ten feet to forty feet. He also said that he might have been ten up had these putts not dropped, but here in all nature he was well on the high road to the green only to be left with a long putt for a half when Aulbach would make a real long one. They played evenly again in the P. M. round but this time Tolley finished strongly and in spite of Aulbach's long distance putting Tolley won by three and two.

LEW TENDLER TO FIGHT PAL MORAN

New York, Sept. 7—Pal Moran, southern lightweight champion, who held Benny Leonard to a draw on ten rounds at New Orleans last Winter, has been matched to battle fifteen rounds with Lew Tendler at Madison Square Garden, September 18.

Moran is now at Saratoga getting into condition. Tendler has agreed to weigh 135 pounds at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. This means that he will have about six pounds on Moran when they square off. Moran's best fighting weight is 133 pounds.

PAL REED IS CONFIDENT HE WILL WIN OVER LOU BOGASH

INJURED LEG IS NOW O. K., SAYS FIGHTER

By JACK CONWAY

My injured leg is now entirely recovered. I have had a rough spell of rest and training during the past month, but I am now in perfect condition, and I am confident that I will defeat Lou Bogash in the battle of twenty fast rounds for the World's Championship at the Boston Arena next Monday night.

That is the statement which Pal Reed, the Lowell lightweight champion, made to me yesterday afternoon when I called at his training quarters in the Lowell Y. M. C. A. building. Reed has been training for the battle with Bogash for the past two weeks, and he has been working hard and faithfully to get himself in the best possible condition for the battle. He has been sparring with Jack Dempsey, Jack Britton, Mickey Walker and other boxers of the welterweight class, and he has been showing to good advantage in all of his workouts.

Reed has been confident all along that he would win the battle with Bogash, but he has been more confident than ever since he has been working out with the boxers mentioned above. He has been showing to good advantage in all of his workouts

Desert Love

By Joan Conquest

She trusted herself with a Sheik in the lonely desert—

WOULD YOU?

Jill Carden, a beautiful and daring young English girl, brought up in a conventional home, burns her bridges behind her and lives in an oasis, far from her own race, for the love of an Arab chief. She was seventeen, motherless and much sought after by reason of her great wealth, which, however, disappeared when her father's will was read. After getting a position as traveling companion she finds herself at Suez. She gets her first glimpse of Hahmed, the Camel King, and tosses a coin to decide whether she shall speak to him or go back to England. It falls heads and she is committed to the Sheik and the desert. The caravan starts for the oasis. Jill tries to escape from her tent, but is caught by Hahmed. He takes her to Arabia, where he builds a beautiful home for her.

AND Jill had walked through a building such as she had not dreamed of in her wildest fantasies, and having very sweetly thanked the Arab, had clapped her hands, and being of perverse mood, had indifferently bidden him good night, and entered the rose pink sleeping room, where the couch had been designed by love, and the coloring reflected by the great mirrors by passion; to slip from out her perfumed raiment, and step down into the pink marble bath and hide beneath the rose tinted waters, the rose-tinted glory of her perfect body.

And just as the dead cheetah was laid at Jill's feet, a huge bulldog, with a face like a gargoyle to be seen on the western transept of Notre Dame, and a chest like a steel safe, supported on legs which had given way under the weight, walked across from Sir John Wetherbourne, Bart., of Bourne Manor, and other delectable mansions, to lay his snuffling, stertorous self at the feet of his mistress, the Honorable Mary Bingham, pronounced Beam, in whose sanctum sat the man on the bleak November evening, and of whom he had just asked advice

People always asked advice of Mary, she was of that kind. On this occasion she sat looking across at the man she loved, and had always loved, just as he loved and had always loved her, since the days they had more or less successfully followed the hounds on fat ponies. She sat cross-legged like a tailor, supported on legs which had given way under the weight, twisting a heavy signet ring up and down her little finger. The finger the one which advises the world of the fact that some man in it has singled you out of the race as being fit for the honor of a fiancée was undressed, including neither the jewels which betoken the drawn-up contract, nor the pure gold which denotes the contract fulfilled. Those two had grown up in the knowledge that they would some time marry, though never a word had been uttered, and being sure and certain of each other, they had never worried, or feared the peace. And then Jill had disappeared! Gone was their pal, their little aster whom they had petted and spoiled from the day she, too, had appeared on a fat pony, gone while on a visit to her two homes—she had spent a month with Mary's people, and a month with her own—and returned from the ends of the earth with a new air of assurance, a new poise, and a new way with her. Mary had missed her terribly, but they loved Jill in spite of themselves, and were glad to get her back. Mary, with her usual tact, had not asked questions, but had discovered that understanding was a wonderful appetizer, and Jill had prospered for a time on fresh fruits and those they had raised themselves.

Foolish people, but they loved Jill in spite of themselves brother and sister left to the quiet when after the debacle she had sweetly declined all offers of help, and were glad to death when she had started out on the bare-handed venture of earning her own living off her own back.

Mary Bingham was one of those delightful women peculiar to England, to look at, restful to know. After three years' absence she was struck afresh by the way in which she could be counted on to remain exactly the same, no matter what the fashion; her own dear self, and she did not alter, even on the hottest days, her smile was a blessing, and her touch and voice unship perfect.

Her clothes, like her style, was tailor-made, which means that near a horse she beat other women to a frazzle, but in a parquet floor covered with divots, wisps of trotting dames and she showing up like a dude in magenta colored dalia in a bed of pansies.

Jack Wetherbourne was of the same comfortable and honest type, and this all of each other in a tit or made was one of those tailor made of the best tweeds, which, cut without distinctive style, he invariably with an occasional visit to the cleaners to last out its wearer; a garment you can always rely on, and be sure of finding ready for use, no matter how long you have kept it hidden in your old oak chest or your capacious wardrobe, or whatever kind of cupboard you may have managed to make out of your life. Although no word of love had ever passed between them, you would have sworn they had been married for years, as they sat on each side of the fire, Mary in a black demi-toilette, cut low at the neck, which does not mean decollete, by any means, but which does invari-one to the other for signs of an understanding which would join the estates in matrimony a pact upon which her heart was set. And as he sat down with an irritated rustle, which gathered in intensity until it developed into a storm of expostulating petulance when she heard of the proposed program.

On the stroke of eleven Mary got up and walked down the broad staircase, and through the great hall, and out on to the steps beside the very splendid man beside her and they stood under the moon, whilst a nightingale bubbled for a moment, and yet they were silent.

Dear old girl," said Jack Wetherbourne, as he pushed open the little gate in the wall which divided their lands, and waved his hand in the direction of the old Tudor house

"Dear old Jack" murmured Mary as her cigarette handed for a chocolate as she sat on the window seat and waited until she heard the faint click of the gate, upon which she waved her handkerchief.

Prosaic sayings, prosaic doings, but those three prosaic words meant as much, and a good deal more to them, than the most exquisite poetical outbursts, written or uttered, since the world began, might mean to us.

By degrees Jill had become accustomed to the habits of the East as she lay peacefully upon the cushion-covered divan, sitting and dressed like Turkish Effendi's principal wife in search of ill

"Mary"—ROMANCE OF A BOSTON BUSINESS GIRL

By Elenore Meherin

Start This Story Today

MARY KELLY wins the post of private secretary to HALL DAWSON, a dynamic promoter with offices in Water street. She instinctively fears him. After the conclusion of a big deal he calls her his mascot and gives her a check for $100, which she accepts with misgivings. Reassured by Dawson, however, she plunges into her work, dreaming of the day she will be his partner. Mary goes to see the parade of the returning Yankee Division and meets PAT SULLIVAN, her childhood sweetheart. JACK MAHONEY, a young millionaire, declares his love for her and she decides to marry him. Pat takes Mary riding and she realizes she loves him only. She receives a letter of proposal from Mahoney.

"THE devil you have!" Dawson picked up the model and a patent drawing Pat had brought, scanning it avidly. "Have you tried it out anywhere?"

"I have it in a Ford now."

"Used kerosine in it?"

"Yes, all the time. I've tried it on a Dodge engine, and it works."

"Sounds good, but it takes a fortune to put a thing like this over. Have you seen any backers—any money behind you?"

"Several men are interested. Drake is ready to do something, but I want to put the carburetor on the market big. I think it's worth organizing a stock company."

"If it's a success it is, but who'll believe that till it's proven? How much stock would you expect for the patent?"

"The controlling interest."

Dawson smiled.

Towson came over to my desk. "Make a note of this Mary." He leaned over my shoulder, dictating Pat's name, address and an item about the carburetor.

Pat bowed stiffly and went out of the room.

As I came down in the elevator with Maidie and Scotty at 5 o'clock he was waiting for me. It startled me.

Thought I'd wait and run you home, Mary," he said.

"Isn't Dawson magnetic, Pat?"

"I think he's insulting." The words seemed to lean out against his wish. "Why don't you get another job, Mary? The fellow's a fool or he's in love with you."

Neil came over that night. It was the first time I had a chance to talk to her since the dinner-dance, when she quizzed me about the necklace.

"Heard from Jack?" she asked. "What are you going to do with Jack Mary; got his goat, too?"

Isn't it sweet to be no danger-ous?" I mocked her.

"It's dangerous to be so sweet that was an awful fling you took out of Teresa. She was furious, but she's asked him to dinner Saturday. That'll fix it up."

On Saturday I stayed down to finish the candy article. It must have been about 8 o'clock when the door opened. I looked up, expecting to see the janitor

A tall, thin man, with shifting, ratlike eyes, peered in, his chalky face like a spotlight against the dark

Without saying a word he turned his back and went out.

Then I flung myself to the door, locked it, pressing my weight against it, holding madly to the knob. It turned in my hands. He was fumbling at it.

I ran over to the phone. I thought of Jim. Then I remembered he was at Teresa's. Numbers raced through my brain. I meant to call Della. Her husband would come for me.

"Hello, hello!" It was Pat's voice speaking. I had called him

"Pat—come—hurry!"

"Mary." His voice was shrill. "What's the matter? Where are you?"

"The office! Quick! He's outside waiting—a man—oh!"

I was crying into the phone. I [illegible]

"Im coming" the phone banged. "Don't faint, don't faint!" I kept saying to myself. "He'll get through the transom." Five minutes. Five minutes. I covered my head and waited. Ten minutes, someone was banging at the door.

"Mary! Mary!" It was Pat's voice. "Let me in"

The door seemed to bend. I got to it—opened it.

"God, God!" He caught me in his arms, pressing me, holding. "Where is he? What did he do?" His arms folded me like iron bands. "You're all right, Mary? Oh, my God!"

His eyes, fierce, tender, suffering, burned on mine. They had not looked like that at Teresa Brady

"Was that all, Mary? Was that all? Only an outside?" The warm tan of Pat's skin showed livid. "God, you had me frightened! I thought something terrible had happened"

"Is that all!" He made me feel abashed that I had called to him, as though it were a cheap, melodramatic thing to have done. "I'm sorry—to—disappoint—you" I turned my back, the tears running down my cheeks. I went to the mirror and dabbed powder on my face

"Poor little thing!" Pat was at my side, his arm around me. "It was enough, wasn't it?" He put his head close to mine. "If anything happened to you, little pal!" He took my hands, pressing them "If you knew what I feared, Mary? When you said 'Office' I felt as though I were stricken. I couldn't move."

"You got here in ten minutes What did you think, Pat?

"Isn't it strange that I should have called you? I thought I was calling Della's husband. Your number just run off my tongue of its own accord"

"It did not," Mary" he laughed at me. "Nothing comes out of our mouths that we haven't already put into our thoughts."

"Well, I was thinking of you, Pat. When I stood there hold ing the knob I thought of you and then I remembered Neil said there was a dinner at Teresa's so I meant to call Jim, but I didn't It's funny, anyway"

"It is—for I didn't go to the dinner—so perhaps we were thinking of each other"

We had reached the house. Pat helped me out, and stood on the steps holding my hand. It made me feel sad, helpless, as though it were a power on me. I went into my room, subdued, quiet, decided, as though something ultimate had happened

I loved Pat. I had known that from the beginning. But now—if he wanted me to beg for him, I would do it. He had only to put his hand on mine—

I took out Jack's letter. I would answer it now. There was nothing to wait for. I wouldn't keep him hoping any longer. I couldn't marry him.

I lighted a lamp on the table, put on a kimono and sat down

I think my mind was never so clear I saw sharply the choice I was making. I looked squarely into a future of toil, of economy. Yet something within me said, "I want him and nobody else."

"Why don't you get another job, Mary? The fellow's a fool or he's in love with you."

I couldn't take Jack. The beautiful home he would give me —the limousine; the charge accounts in all the shops where I could buy more clothes than I could wear

I must give them up, and it made no difference though I gave them up for nothing. Pat might not love me. He might never care. But as long as he was free, I would wait I could take no one else.

It might be but a passing fascination I had for him. I had known men to go out with girls; to tell them a hundred times that they loved them; to kiss them, to spend whole evenings doing it. I knew that men did not mean all they said

I used to feel a sort of contempt when I saw a girl really distracted wondering whether a man meant to marry her

And now I was in love with Pat like that. But no one would know it He would not. I would hide it until he should demand it. I would not give it quickly, easily as a thing of no value. He would have to win it.

No woman can afford the luxury of complete self-expression in love.

It seems that a woman must hide the fire of her love behind mists of indifference so that the real may baffle and lure without desire ing a man's interest.

Is love worth all these tricks and concealments? I would not need them with Jack. I took up his letter. I could hold him to the last—but Pat! I closed my eyes. I could feel his head close to mine. I began to write.

Dear Jack—It is hard for me to send this answer to you; to return pain for all the happiness you have given. I have waited, wondering, hating to hurt you, and yet I knew without knowing that it is true, and my answer must be As I read your letter, I saw your happy face always before me. I would give anything to escape hesitation and shadow upon it. If we could have been friends I think our companionship would be the pleasantest thing in the world. I would like to go on forever as it was, but not otherwise. I like you —you have brought me only pleasure—but I do not love you and I never can.'

I stopped—that seemed so cruel, and yet I could think of no better thing to say I put the letter in an envelope and sat there at the table looking into the back yard. Everywhere I looked I saw faces—Pat's and Jack's. I put out the light, got into bed and closed my eyes. Still the faces filed before me: two pairs of eyes, one gray, commanding, tender, the other, brown, happy, tolerant—both seeing mine, both asking.

As I was leaving in the morning ma called me into her room. "Help me fix this veil, Mary, dear." She was going to a funeral. Little Ella Jackson, across the street, had died. "These gloves are shabby —do they look bad Mary?" Ma had worn those gloves nearly a year. She had on her blue suit —the only one she had, and the piece of black astrachan—the nearest thing to a fur she had ever owned

"You look all right, ma but that astrachan's a fright."

"Why, it's lovely, Mary," she smiled at me. "I'll get a fur next year maybe." She put a pin in the ragged scarf and turned it so that the worn edge didn't show.

I had the letter to Jack in my pocket If I didn't send it, ma wouldn't have to wait for that fur probable next year for a fur. She kissed me. I felt like a thief.

I dropped the letter in the box and looked down through the narrow slit into the darkness

Would I regret the thing I had done?

I told no one what I had done. I went back to the house after I mailed the letter. A blank wa confronted me.

I was glad ma had gone to the funeral—glad June would sleep most of the day. The long Sunda was before me.

I had made my decision. I didn t want to reharsh it, and by the cool, dismissoning morning it seemed to me I had exaggera Pat's attention

Perhaps—

I took a walk to escape thinking Then I came back to escape m ing him if he phoned. It was even ing when he called.

"Mary, dear, you haven't answered that letter yet? That isn't right." Ma and I were sitting in the parlor in the twilight hour after Pat phoned

"I answered it today, ma." She waited for me to continue. "It don't love him, ma. I wish I could marry him It would make it so easy for all of us—and that old astrachan of yours—"

"My darling!" Her fingers tightened on mine. "You wouldn't think of such a thing as that! I can get along, dear; I'm used to it But I hoped." I didn't look at her, but I knew there were tears in her eyes "I wonder why my girls must choose the hardest way."

She was disappointed. She said no more, but it was like a weight on me. I had considered myself —my own interest.

Next year she would have a fur next year. I would take singing lessons; next year we would buy a new carpet. I could have brought all those next years to her.

I kept thinking about it at the office—if Dawson gave me a raise; if the bonus was as big as it ought to be? He seemed to read my thought

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

ANECDOTES OF FAMOUS

Mr W Davenport Adams in his "Dictionary of English Literature" says this ballad was written by Lady Anne Barnard in 1771, under circumstances which the authoress has herself recorded She says there was an ancient Scottish melody, of which she was passionately fond, which a friend of hers used to sing to her at her father's house in Balcarras. This friend, it seems, did not object to its having inferior words, but Lady Barnard (then Lady Lindsay) did. She longed, she said, to sing the air to different words and to give to its plaintive tones some little history of virtuous distress in humble life such as might suit it "The song, as it now stands, was accordingly completed, and became a favorite in the domestic circle; but the authorship, so far from becoming known, was not divulged till 1823, when Lady Barnard acknowledged it in a letter to Sir Walter Scott. By him the ballad was printed in the form of a tract for the Bannatyne Club, together with two continuations, both, however, inferior to the original poem. It may be added that the title "Robin Gray" was taken from the name of an old herdsman in Lord Balcarras'

REARING CHILDREN

By WM. A. McKEEVER

FIFTEEN years ago a father passed away leaving a modest home, $2,000 in life insurance and seven small children, aged from two to fourteen, as a legacy to the mother and here is what the mother has made out of the seven:

A practicing pharmacist.
A skilled organist.
An interne physician.
A trained nurse.
A senior law student.
An architect in training.
A promising high school youth.

"All of these are girls but any, and I have had a jolly time rearing them up," is the proud mother's favorite jest in regard to the matter.

"I brought them up on plain teaching. Every one of them was a music-fed child. I tended babies with one hand and taught piano lessons with the other. People seemed to believe in us. They sent their children in flocks to be instructed and so enabled me to feed my own. By force of necessity every child learned early to be independent and to wait on himself. I have always been too busy to get discouraged, and, it is not a burdensome task after all."

Thus the brave mother in decisive manner sketched this story of her splendid achievement and gave a group of listeners an interesting recital as to the methods of child training which, in times past, have contributed so much to the making of the American commonwealth. Why has the like of her almost passed from the stage of action and all too often the flapper mother of the one flapper child taken her place?

"Cramped and jostled for space, as the earth's children have become, something had to happen," said a sagacious recently, "and the 'flapper' is the unhappy fault."

But perhaps we may adopt the methods of the old-style mother of seven to our one, two and three-child family, let us see—

She was not busy to despair.

She did not have time to spoil her children.

She early taught each one to rely on his own efforts

She gave them all lessons in common industry and thrift.

She directed each one towards a life work for which he manifested a peculiar talent.

New American Radio Chain

NEW radio stations that will link Central and South America in a gigantic chain with the United States will be built at once by the Radio Corporation of America for the United Fruit Company and the Tropical Radio Telegraph Company, it was announced today

Four new stations will be established, and the station will be greatly enlarged, to make this radio chain complete. Through the erection of three new stations in Central America the southern part of the western hemisphere will be linked with the northern part

The three Central American stations will be located on the corners of the triangle embracing Honduras, Nicaragua and Panama. Tropical Radio Telegraph stations at Managua, the capital of Nicaragua, and at Tegucigalpa, the capital of Honduras, will connect with a United Fruit Company's station at Almirante, Panama. The latter will be in dependable communication with the station at Bogota, Columbia.

The United States terminals will be at New Orleans, Louisiana, where the present station will be enlarged, and at Miami, Florida, where a new station will be built. Direct communication between Miami and Bogota, a distance of 2,000 miles will be possible under average conditions, but in seasons of great static interference, messages may be routed through Central America.

The stations will use vacuum tubes of the latest design for transmission and reception, and will use the multiple tuned antennas. Wave lengths will range from 2,500 to 20,000 meters, and the power actually delivered at these wave lengths will be equivalent to over 100 kilowatts on a spark or damped wave apparatus.

Curiosity

An old lady in a bus noticed that a man sitting in front of her had his arm in a sling. She was a very inquisitive old person, and couldn't refrain from leaning forward and asking: "My poor man, what have you done to your arm?"

"Broke it, ma'am," the man replied.

"And how did you break it?" continued the old lady.

"When I was patting myself on the back," ma'am," he said

"Patting yourself on the back! Whatever were you doing that for?"

He looked at her for a moment, and then said, "For minding my own business, ma'am"

POLITICAL NOTES

A denial that the incumbent of the Registry of Deeds must be a lawyer is made by former Senator Charles A. Winchester, candidate for Register, at rallies in Roxbury.

"My experience as an architect qualifies me for the engineering portion of the work. As for the legal, I have ample experience as a law-maker, having served in the House and Senate with a record that cannot be attacked."

District Attorney S. Howard Donnell of Essex County at rallies in Cliftondale and Saugus stressed the need of a strong man in the office of Attorney General in order that anti-profiteering laws may be enforced. He later coursed through Lynn in a whirlwind series of rallies.

Former Governor Eugene N. Foss, candidate for Governor, at rallies in Dorchester stated: "I favor the fullest measure of public ownership of public utilities. I have referred to some extent to my reason for believing that the street railways of our Commonwealth should be owned and operated by the people. As your Governor I will fight to bring that about."

Senator Thomas F. Donovan, candidate for Congress in the Tenth District, confident of securing the Democratic nomination, nightly assails what he terms the "eight-year record of inertia" of Congressman Tague. "Send a real progressive Democrat as your representative at Washington and the district need not seek favors from Senator Lodge and other Republicans," he declared.

A castigation of the tariff bill, and of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge for espousing it, was made by Senatorial Candidate Sherman A. Whipple at several rallies in Greater Boston. "The opinion of experts places the increased cost of food under the new tariff at one billion and a half a year, while the increased cost of sugar is estimated to exceed two hundred million.

Former Senator John J. Kearney, candidate for Congress in the Tenth District, at rallies in West and South Ends, declared: "I favor a government subsidy by Congress to establish a national housing commission to provide more and better housing facilities."

Mayor James M. Curley, ardent advocate of Sherman L. Whipple for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, at rallies in Boston continued his attacks on Colonel William A. Gaston. Whipple's campaign manager Mr. Gloag has done away with the noise and parading of political campaigners of the old days.

"Whole hearted interest is all that can maintain the proper relations between the people who have the power and the representatives they elect to the government," is the statement of Michael A. O'Leary, Democratic candidate for the nomination for Lieutenant Governor.

More than 800 residents of the North End are scheduled to march in a "victory parade" tonight in the interest of Representative George Costanza, who is out for re-election to the House from Ward 8.

Mayor Benjamin F. Haines, of Medford, candidate for the office of District Attorney, Middlesex County, declared that George Stanley Harvey, who was first assistant to Nathan A. Tufts and is now a candidate for district attorney, would be "the dirty finger in the old ring," if elected.

James F. Cavanaugh of Everett, candidate for the Republican nomination for attorney-general, speaking in Somerville and Everett, said there was evidence that certain lawyers in special practice and probably received favors from the "district attorney's office because they helped to nominate the district attorneys. For a square deal he urged the voters to nominate him next Tuesday.

"They are political children and office holders, born of the same political parents, namely, the county rings of Plymouth and Norfolk County," declared William Shaw McCallum, candidate for the district attorney of Plymouth and Norfolk Counties, in referring to his opponents.

At rallies held in the Roxbury wards John J. Cummings, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant-Governor, said: "I notice that my opponent, John F. Doherty lately has espoused the cause of public ownership of the Boston Elevated Railway Company and also advocates the elimination of private insurance companies from the field of workingmen's compensation. This I welcome his conversion and do not doubt his sincerity, I would remind him that when we served together in the Legislature of 1919 for the cause of public ownership of the Boston Elevated Railway Company and for the people against the insurance companies when he was silent on these subjects."

Governor Cox warned against "twelfth hour" charges in favor of his opponent, J. Weston Allen, at rallies in Brockton, at which he declared: "He cancelled a meeting at which he was to reply to me. Friday night is pretty late for new charges. In all fairness, if my opponent has anything further to say of me he should do it now so I may make reply. Beware of twelfth-hour charges. I deserve better treatment from one who came to me as a friend until he became my opponent."

"The contest between Senator Lodge and myself for the Republican nomination for the United States Senate raises a clear cut issue between the 'old guard' Republican and the 'progressive' Republican," declared Joseph Walker, at rallies on Boston Common, at Lynn and on Columbus avenue, Boston.

Charles Herbert McGlinnehey, candidate for representative from Ward 8, makes another of his whirlwind tours of the district tonight.

The executive committee of the Republican City Committee unanimously endorsed the candidacy of Peter P. Porter of Ward 5, for the office of register of deeds, Suffolk County.

Several prominent speakers took part in the "J. Weston Allen for Governor" rallies held in Somerville, Cambridge, Malden, Everett, Melrose, Medford, Woburn, Reading, Winchester and Arlington.

"From my knowledge of Harold D. Wilson, I have found him to be a young man of sincerity and good character. I think, however, that you will consider that it is vitally essential that the candidate for the candidate for the office of Attorney-General is a man of adequate and broad legal training," is the statement of George P. Drury, Democratic candidate for Attorney-General.

Senator William H. McDonald reviewed his activities as a public servant in asking the support of Democrats in his fight for the Governor's Council in the third councillor district.

Lack of faith on the part of the government with the people was declared by Joseph B. Ely to be the underlying cause of the present industrial strife. Mr. Ely, who is a candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, spoke at several rallies in Worcester.

EXPECT INDICTMENT IN MINE MASSACRE

Marion, Ill., Sept. 7.—Indications that murder indictments will be returned by the Grand Jury probing the Herrin massacre by charging several persons with the murder of Anthony Mulkavich, an honorably discharged veteran of the World War, during the slayings of June 21 and June 22, are apparent. At the same time, it was learned, that a criminal court will be established in Marion to try persons hit by indictments in connection with the riots.

Trade Balance, Woman Diplomat, Speed

And the First Colored Lady Aviator

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

France is worried about a bad trade balance. Her imports so far this year have exceeded her exports by almost two thousand million francs. To pay out, in seven months, two billions more than you take in is disturbing. But you never can tell about trade balances. The revolution broke out in France when, for the first time in a long while, the balance of trade had come around in favor of France.

The general idea is that success for nations means always trading out of the country, in exchange for money, more than you buy from other countries. But that is not necessarily true.

If you heard that a farmer sold all his good cream, butter, fresh eggs, etc., in the village, getting $500 and spent only $100 to feed his family on canned goods, you would not call him such a successful farmer.

If industry were properly organized, to keep all busy, such a country as this one could do very well with a balance of trade against it. We could pay for the balance with silver, gold and other things useful only in trade.

The first woman diplomat will soon come to the United States, as first Secretary of the Bulgarian Legation. She had to promise not to marry, which is foolish. Why shouldn't she marry and make her husband her assistant? Anybody who thinks that women cannot keep secrets, diplomatic and others, and especially from their husbands, knows little about woman.

There will be many women diplomats in days to come. Leaks in diplomacy have usually come from men talking too much to women. Women would not leak in that way.

At Strasbourg, in the shadow of the old brownstone cathedral and in the land where they stuff geese to make their livers swell up—(fat men take warning)—Nazzaro, an Italian, recently drove an automobile 500 miles in 6 hours, 17 minutes, 2 seconds.

That speed would have seemed marvelous compared with a trotting horse a few years ago. Now it seems slow compared with the fast flying machine. We travel quickly, in more ways than one, in these days. Speeds adds to life. It's how MUCH, not how LONG you live.

A race horse, in twenty-five years, lives longer than a Galapagos Island turtle in 400 years.

The first and only colored lady aviator comes from Europe. Bessie Coleman is her name and she has flown a plane with a 220-horsepower motor, the most powerful ever run by a woman, it is said. She took to flying naturally, without any teaching.

The colored race should supply many excellent fliers. Colored men and women have natural physical balance superior to that of white people. They usually ride a bicycle the first time they try.

HOW many Easterners know that Hollywood, the heart of the movies was named after a former postmaster of Brockton? A Brockton man named Perkins migrated to the coast and engaged in the real estate business, developed that section and gave it the name of his friend back here in Massachusetts.

Cider mills have started to grind out their quota of "fruit juice" earlier than usual this year. On King street, Hanson, "the oldest mill in Plymouth County" exchanges three gallons of sweet cider for a bushel of apples and fifteen cents. Most Boston auto parties, not having their apples along, are plain cash customers.

PATROLMAN CONNOLLY, who sways traffic at School and Tremont streets, has great respect for the Stars and Stripes, and it "gets his goat" to have chauffeurs pass him by with the American flag over a radiator having an insignificant ornament hanging over the emblem of liberty. He stopped one of these violators last week and gave him a short crisp talk about the honor due the flag.

Ever find your way by compass? Rev. Cornelius Reardon of St. Jerome's Church, North Weymouth, tells of his experience among the mountains of upper New Hampshire. In making an ascent he had taken along a compass and made careful note of surroundings as he followed the trail. On his return a fog obliterated landmarks and he followed the swaying needle. "I struggled against an inclination to go in the opposite direction," he says "but the compass proved true."

Individual drinking cups for cows is the innovation introduced by S. Scott McLearn of Alston at his 1,500-acre farm in West Brookfield. "Mac's" bossies do not have to depend upon the memory of the hired man to supply them with water. All they need do is to press their lips against the porcelain fountains in front of their stanchions and they may drink to their hearts content.

Gone are the days when Benjamin Franklin used to run from his father's tallow candle store on the corner of Washington street and Harvard place to get a bubbling drink of Nature's best in nearby Spring lane. The old spring that furnished water for Colonial Boston is covered with granolithic paving and the lane, a sort of oasis in busy Boston's centre, has become a favorite gathering place for street bootblacks who ply a highly profitable trade.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON THE EARTH'S SHAPE

By Garrett P. Serviss

"I have heard it stated that the weight of a body at the equator, as compared with its weight at either pole, is reduced 1-699th. I would thank you for an explanation."—M. J. F., New John.

THE weight of a body at the equator is reduced in comparison with the weight of the same body at either pole by a much larger fraction than that which you state. Instead of losing only 1-559th of its weight in passing from the pole to the equator, the body would lose about 1-190th. If it weighed 190 pounds at either pole, it would weigh 189 pounds on the equator. But it is very important for a clear understanding of this that you remember the difference between a "spring balance" and a counterweight scale.

The former alone gives the true weight of a body at any particular locality on the earth. It does this because the force of the spring is not affected by variations in the force of gravity; while, on the other hand, a scale constructed on the principle of counterbalancing weights fails to reveal gravitational changes for the reason that the weight is equally affected on both sides of the fulcrum.

That is to say, if the body to be weighed loses one pound, the standard "weight" in the opposite scale, with which it is compared, also loses one pound. But a spring balance reveals the loss of weight of the body because the pulling force is lessened, while the strength of the spring remains unchanged by the diminution of gravity.

The loss of 1-190th of its weight experienced by a body in being transferred from the pole to the equator is made up of two parts, each due to a different cause. The centrifugal force of the earth's rotation, as has recently been explained in these articles, causes a diminuation of 1-289th in the weight of the body, while the increase of the distance from the centre of the earth in going from the pole to the equator causes another diminution of about 1-155th. Add these two fractions and you get the whole amount of the loss of weight, which is, as before stated, about 1-190th.

The primary cause of the whole inequality is the earth's rotation, for to that is due the fact that the earth's diameter is greater through the equator than through the poles. The rotation gives rise to centrifugal force, which increases toward the equator. The earth has taken an oblate form—i. e., the length of the axis around which it turns is less than the length of a diameter drawn through the equator at right angles to the axis of rotation. If the earth were perfectly spherical and smooth, like a glass ball every object lying unfastened on its surface would slide toward the equator.

When it was in a molten state the centrifugal tendency affected the whole mass, and before its solid crust had been formed it had already assumed the general shape that it possesses today. The centrifugal force is zero at the poles and a maximum at the equator.

The equator it is exerted directly in opposition to gravity, but between the equator and the poles it is divisible into two components, one opposed to gravity and the other directed equatorwards. This latter component of the centrifugal force has its maximum effect in latitude 45 degrees, where it causes the plumb-line to deviate about one-tenth of a degree toward the equator.

Senator John Sharp W., What About YOU?

Did You Refuse Pay in War?

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

John Sharp Williams, Senator from Mississippi, attacks the bonus bill. He asks: "Who would measure in dollars the dear love of a man for his native land?" The answer from some former soldiers who lost their jobs while away will be as follows:

"The Senator who served his native land with 'dear love' and took pay for doing it in war measured that 'dear love' in cash. And the buyer of Liberty Bonds, who risked neither his job nor his life in the war, did not hesitate to accept from his 'dear land' interest on his money. If public officials and bond buyers can take money from the government in war, when they do not risk their lives or lose their jobs, why can't the soldier that does risk his life and lose his job take a bonus? Or is the man with nothing expected to supply all the patriotism not 'measured in dollars'?"

Senator Williams did not arise in war to say: "My country is in trouble, needs money. Young men are sacrificing their jobs and their incomes. I refuse to accept a Senator's salary and mileage for merely standing here and talking."

If he had said that during the war his protest against the bonus would sound better.

Business Ignorance Fights Public Ownership

Some Day Business Will Beg for It

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

The views of the country agree that business is held back, prosperity damaged, retail trade more or less crippled by the railroad and coal strike.

Business men that have so energetically opposed all suggestions of government ownership will, by and by, as the light dikes in, demand and put through the government ownership to which they have objected.

The great national monopolies and necessities have become too big for private individuals. Government ownership and management, or constant strikes and interruption are the alternatives. Ask any business man what he thinks of the government-owned parcels post.

Ask him if he would be willing to turn the postoffice over to private ownership. What will he answer?

Ask him if he would rent out the elevators in his store or office building to private management and exploitation. What will he answer?

Railroads are to the nation and street cars are to the city what elevators are to a big building.

On Staying Married

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

FROM California comes a letter saying:

"We note in your article you mention the oft repeated fact of the appalling number of divorces.

"But what an interesting article could be written if you would dig up statistics showing the percentage of married couples remaining in wedlock compared to the number of divorces in any one year; in Los Angeles, for instance.

"We will look forward to an early article on the above subject."

It is always gratifying to find that something contributed to no momentary a medium as a daily newspaper does strike far enough into the minds and hearts of people to call forth a response.

And even a request for "more light."

Also, it is a bit reassuring to discover that a journalist is taken sufficiently seriously to be regarded as interpreter and teacher.

To come to the subject. There is no need to dig up statistics to show the percentage of married couples remaining in wedlock.

Divorce has not yet become so fashionable as to be commonplace. Indeed, divorce is still exceptional—even in Los Angeles.

Nor has the bliss of marriage to lost the quality of durability as to be regarded only preliminary to the more lasting bliss of divorce.

Most married folks stay married—even if only to live scrappily forever after.

The reason our Californian correspondent is so deeply impressed by the statistics of divorce is that a crash of thunder is more dramatically impressive than a placar, blue sky.

A normally happy marriage we take for granted. The breakup of a marriage, whether through triangulation or through the tragic denouement of the divorce court, still continues to be sufficiently abnormal to command journalistic attention as a "human interest" story.

Because Los Angeles or Hollywood or Reno or members of the so-called smart set in New York or elsewhere have specialized in divorce as in some passing style, we need not believe that staying married has become either unusual or hard.

Indeed, most husbands and wives do not have to consult the court records or to look up the Blue Book in order to find out who's whose wife or husband.

Of course, even among the vast majority of those who remain in wedlock there are varying attitudes toward marriage.

To great numbers marriage is a sacrament inviolable. To others it is a breakable civil contract. To still others it is a course of education, or a painful punishment for the rashness of youth or the folly of indiscretion.

To the normally fortunate and the fairly wise it is the consummation of mutual attraction and a continuous enrichment in love and in all the intrinsic values of life.

Democracy has made permanent marriage somewhat more difficult because of its stimulus to individual self-insistence.

Even so, we have not developed Hamlet's terror of marriage. Poor, melancholy Dane! He had a too much married mother.

History Proves It

Editor Boston American:

More power to your splendid paper, your cartoons and editorials on public ownership and also to such men as William A. Ryan, one of your correspondents who says that the only way to wake up the people is to oppress and hammer them.

History proves that Mr. Ryan is correct. The French revolution was a result of the oppression of the proletariat. So with Russia, the Czar regime and the Siberian exile being the cause of the awakening of the serfs. Labor unions were not formed until years of bloody marching under the whips of the masters forced labor to organize and protect itself. England's oppressive taxation without representation forced the American colonists to declare themselves independent. Starvation and famine under British rule has forced India to revolt just as unjust exploitation of Ireland forced the Irish into their long struggle for independence.

The unescapable law of evolution, grinding its way along the path of progress, creates a stupid mass who are willing to suffer in silence the oppression and exploitation of the economic master. But at the same time, evolution creates the intelligent minority which is willing to work and suffer persecution in order that the forward march of civilization might go on to the glorious heights when the superman will be realized. Loyal Ulster

Editor Boston American:

As a loyalist of Ulster, I was pleased to read the figures given by Mr. O'Reilly that 90 per cent. of the Irish are back of the Free State. But as yet I have failed to read a word of praise for the loyal men of Ulster, who, after all is said and done, were responsible for the creation of the Free State.

While the rest of Ireland followed De Valera in pursuit of a republic, or again followed the teachings of Connolly or Larkin in the hopes of establishing a communistic commonwealth, the dour determined men of Ulster, ever true to the loyal principles of their fathers, held Ulster for the crown, and succeeded in getting a Parliament of their own, the constitution of which is identical to that now given to the Free State.

In a few years the both parliaments, having so much in common, will, we pray, be merged into one for the benefit of all Ireland. Happy and contented within the empire, protected and guided by one king, one fleet, one throne.

If This Is Your Birthday

You Are LUCKY

Your life should be interesting if today is your birthday, for you possess the rare faculty of dramatizing the trivial incidents of your daily existence, until they take on the importance of world events. For you there is as much tragedy in losing your direction as there is for most nations for losing a war.

Your mind is active and enthusiastic, but needlessly complicated in its thought processes. You are inventive, but not efficient.

ARE YOUR EXPENSES OUT-RUNNING YOUR INCOME?

Said a man from a Southern State, "I am in debt, not through the exigencies of increasing my business, but as a result of extravagance on the part of my family and myself. What shall I do?"

Imparting further information along this line, it became known that he and his family had reached a position socially from which they could not recede, even though they realized that it was costing too much to maintain this so-called social position.

If expenses and income cannot be balanced on the right side, there is only one way to break even, and that is cut expenses.

It is foolish to contract debts with no money to cancel them.

When the final day of reckoning arrives in financial matters, the fall is bound to be greater if debts are allowed to accumulate without any effort whatsoever to make them less.

Going deeper and deeper in debt is going to cause worry and day and night unhappiness, which will far overbalance any happiness which the money expenditure could bring.

As soon as you realize you are spending too much cut down expenses.

—Medbury Says—

Modern Girls Do the Cooing and the Fellows Bill Them for It

A FELLOW in New York was jilted by his sweetheart, so he sent her a bill for the money he spent while he was courting her, and she sent him a check for the amount.

It isn't the woman who pays, she just reimburses the man.

The bill amounted to $150,000. He probably took her to dinner once or twice during the courtship period.

He should have been more generous as long as he was using her money. There's no use in being tight with your sweetheart's dough.

The hundred and fifty dollars was just for the actual cash. He didn't send any bill for time and labor.

This is going to make it tough for the rest of the men.

Pretty soon a girl won't go out with a fellow unless he signs a release.

Still, this will give the girls a chance to go around more. They can meet some nice fellow and open an account with him.

They can have a swell dinner, go to the theatre in a taxi, and do it all on the easy payment plan.

And then, if she doesn't want to pay it, she doesn't have to go through bankruptcy.

All she has to do is marry the fellow.

It all depends upon whether she loves him for the cash or credit.

It won't be long before a fellow will look up a girl in Bradstreets before he takes her out.

Then he will consult his bookkeeper to see if her credit is good. He'd like to do the same as all business firms and give her thirty days, but very few men go with a girl that long.

A guy will call a dame up to go to dinner and she'll say "I'd like to, but I owe you too much now."

Then if he's a regular fellow, he'll tell her he'll wait until the last of the month for his money.

It will soon be that the women will have to establish their credit before the men will take them out.

The girls should make it a point to square up their debts with their sweethearts as soon as he sends them the bill.

No dame wants to have a fellow say "Mary Brown is good company, but slow to pay."

But couples can still Bill an-Coo.

She does the cooing and he does the billing.

PONZI ASKS ARREST OF PARTNER

Wizard, In Court, Accuses Former Associate of Extortion

Charles Ponzi, one time financial wizard, now inmate of Plymouth County Jail, today applied for the arrest of a former partner on the charge of extortion.

The application was refused by Judge Bennett in a private hearing at Pemberton Square.

Ponzi claimed that this former partner had extorted many thousands of dollars from him by threats. Arguing his own cause before the judge he said he wanted this man arrested "because he secured money from another unlawfully."

When Judge Bennett asked the dapper wizard if he actually feared bodily harm from this former partner, Ponzi did not reply directly but brought out the fact that during the hectic days of his financial bubble he was always accompanied by a strong-arm squad of guards.

The hearing was brief, first Attorney Matthew J. McGrath, for Ponzi, presenting the case, then the man who duped thousands speaking for himself.

Ponzi reached the city early, coming over the road from Plymouth and guarded by the stalwart Sheriff Blake. He went to the office of his counsel, William H. Lewis, and then, accompanied by Attorney McGrath and the ever-present Sheriff Blake, he went into conference with the trustees appointed to disentangle the muddled affairs of the Ponzi company.

When the warrant was refused Ponzi said, through his attorney, that he would bring civil action against the former partner.

Macon, Mo., Sept. 7.—Cave man tactics didn't "take" with Mrs. Myrtle Anna Barron, eighteen.

Alleging her husband had whipped her because she bobbed her hair, the youthful wife recently filed suit for divorce against John Barron.

The plaintiff said that she was married June 14, 1920, and that she had her hair bobbed July 4, this year.

"The defendant flew into a rage about it and proceeded to whip and cruelly abuse her," the petition reads.

"Never again," Mrs. Barron vehemently remarked.

While Edgar Brownell of Brooklyn, N. Y., was in a hospital, his wife, Mrs. Marion L. Brownell of Quincy, gave birth to a baby. The couple were married in Providence in 1913.

GUILFORD TRAILS IN GOLF

Sweetser Has Him 1 Up at 18 Holes; Evans and Knepper Lead; Others Even Up

By NICK FLATLEY.
Country Club, Brookline, Sept. 7.—Rudy Knepper, the Jack Dempsey of this golf tournament, has the last British hope hanging on the ropes and, incidentally, they need the same out here, meaning the ropes, to keep the big galleries off the carefully manicured lawns.

This has developed into one of the greatest struggles in links history for our amateur crown and the signs all point to a general invasion by the Massachusetts population tomorrow and the next day.

Rudy, as we started to remark, came home this morning 3 up on Cyril Tolley, and was swinging into the same kind of a game that knocked out Bill Torrence the other day and Francis Ouimet yesterday. The Sioux City gamecock took advantage of Tolley's early slump and built up a good lead.

The Englishman pared it down, however, on the outward round when he glued four good holes together and had the birdie chirping merrily. But little Rudolph wound up his round with a flurry 3 on the home hole and was a heavy favorite to lead the parade in the afternoon.

GUILFORD A BIT OFF.

Jess Guilford, our defending champion, was a bit off and came home in the morning record one behind Jesse Sweetser, the former college champ, who is heading very effectively for the pinnacle of the sport. The Woodlander wasn't sinking his putts, and this caused him to fall in the rear, after he had a good lead and a real chance to build up an insuperable barrier.

Billy McPhail, the Norfolk surprise, wasn't a bit shaken by the fact that he had the great Bobby Jones for an opponent, and he stepped forth and gave the Atlanta whap a real tussle all through the initial eighteen.

The pair of them came to the home hole all even, after tossing the lead around like a tennis ball, and if play means anything, it was anybody's match this afternoon.

EVANS HAS BIG LEAD.

Chick Evans, not going so well as he has been, caught Frank Godchaux, the New Orleans contender, a bit off form, and came in with a four-hole lead, the only match of the quartet that was at all lopsided.

The two Jesses, Guilford and Sweetser, both played ragged golf on the way out, and landed at the tenth tee all even. Both were out in 46, which is very poor for chaps of their class.

The defending champion was hooking and slicing all over the course, and he didn't have his customary putting touch. He started to go on the inward round, and picked up a couple in the first three played.

KNEPPER 3 UP.

Cyril Tolley was another diver from grace, having a terrible time on the way out. He reached the turn in 44, which is about eight strokes worse than he has been averaging all through the tournament. He was hooking badly and giving himself too much to do to bombard the greens.

Knepper, who knocked out Ouimet yesterday, wasn't as good as he might be starting, but he quickly swung into form when the enemy went wild, and was three up at the turn.

Sweetser won the second hole

RESTRAINT ORDER IS FOUGHT

Unions Named in Injunction Obtained by Daugherty in Appeal to Courts

Washington, Sept. 7.—Attorney General Daugherty today sent for Senator Borah, chairman of the Senate Labor Committee, and after a conference it was indicated the government would not insist, in next Monday's hearing on the permanent rail injunction, on the provisions alleged to curb freedom of speech.

Washington, Sept. 7.—A petition for an injunction was filed today in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia against U. S. Attorney Peyton Gordon and U. S. Marshal Edgar C. Snyder, marshal for the District of Columbia, by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, which would restrain Gordon and Snyder from enforcing within the District of Columbia the provisions of the blanket injunction issued to Attorney-General Daugherty.

The plaintiffs state that neither before nor since the first day of July, this year, have they committed any unlawful acts incident to the strike of railway shopmen. The Brotherhood and President Noonan were named in Attorney-General Daugherty's injunction.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Sept. 7.—The Beaver Run reservoir of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, the largest water supply of the company, was blown up and millions of gallons of water released, which caused considerable damage to the company property, it became known here today.

Strikers are blamed by railroad police for the dynamiting. Company detectives have been on the lookout for men who were reported to have concealed large quantities of dynamite on company property. The blowing out of the dam is believed to be a part of that plot.

Fourteen women and seven men were arrested at Sayre today for violation of the Daugherty injunction. Strikers attempted a ruse to beat the injunction. Knowing they were restrained from trespassing on company property and doing picket duty, they turned the work over to their wives.

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 7.—I am able today to make an exclusive announcement of tremendous import to womankind.

I have learned what the female of the cinema species will wear this Fall.

"I haven't bought a single pair of 'toothpick' shoes," said Gloria Swanson, "but I am an avowed champion of the earring fad. I am wearing only one at a time instead of two. Rather novel, don't you think?"

LONG, SLIM LINES.

"Most of my Fall wardrobe I bought in Paris," she continued. "My gowns have long, slim lines, fit snugly about the hips and are distinguished by odd sashes and, in many cases, bouffant sleeves. They have long skirts. My favorite Parisian purchase is a citron yellow metallasse evening wrap of quaint design, having sleeves with three puffs and cords and tassels of gold."

Clara Kimball Young said: "I believe in adapting the fashions Paris send us to the personality of the individual. It has been my experience that imported gowns have to be remodeled to suit the American woman."

Mary Pickford Fairbanks said: "Style is the basic principle of dress. The trailly, vampire skirt is just in vogue. A woman's skirt length should be governed by the kind of feet and ankles she has."

RUTH'S SPORT TOGS.

It is to Ruth Roland that women look for the last word in the sport tags.

"I have knicker suits in paste shades of blue, fawn and tan," she said. Some have the cape effect and the sleeveless coat, others have the added smart touch of a gay vest."

Betty Compson said: "I don't care so much for the long waist line. I think the smart dresser should wear either a large hat with a broad brim or a small one fitting close to the head."

Lila Lee said: "Long skirts are the most graceful fashion I've seen in years," she says. "Make you look so Irene Castle-ish. I like the close-fitting collars that are to replace the large ones.

TWENTY NEW MODELS.

MARY MILES MINTER said: "The length of the skirt is in harmony with the long waist lines. I have just received twenty new models from Jenny, Pallott, Worth, Lanvin and Boue, fourare in Paris. They are brocades, silver cloth, velvet, so fine one can be pulled through a finger ring; fur-trimmed tailleurs and some head dresses of pearls and bird of paradise."

CLAIRE WINDSOR said: "For afternoon, I have just ordered a wood brown broadcloth suit, plain and long, with little buttons straight down the front. A quske collar and cuffs of that soft tan leather which is like duvetin. Plain brown suede pumps with high old-fashioned buckles and plain brown stocks and a raksh little hat of toast-colored satin."

BEBE DANIELS said: "I shall continue to wear the full, short skirt. The short skirt also calls for the French vamp shoes, which are contrary to the toothpick-toed ones Paris is trying to wish on us."

STARS SHOCK SHIP; REFUSE TO DRINK

New York, Sept. 7. — Several stars of the Famous-Players-Lasky Corporation shocked the entire passenger list on board the Savoia when they formally refused to partake of fine French wines offered them by the captain. The stars, including Nita Naldi and Florence Dixon, as well as the director, ordered water and sent back the wine. They were on board making a picture.

FINDS NEEDLE IN BREAKFAST EGG

Middleport, O., Sept. 7.—Harry Kaiser experienced a narrow escape from swallowing a good-sized needle while eating a boiled egg for breakfast. The needle was seen just before Kaiser was about to swallow it. The egg was from his flock of hens. How the needle got inside the shell is a deep mystery.

DON'T JUMP OUT OF BED, TAKE YOUR TIME

London, Sept. 7.— Do not spring from bed the moment you wake in the morning. Do not spring from bed at all—take it quietly. This is the advice that the best physicians in London now give to those who consult them.

The old idea was that as soon as you opened your eyes you should fling off the bedclothes, bound to the floor with a display of magnificent vitality, and hurl yourself at the business of the day. It was all wrong. It was unscientific. It took no account of the mental and physical state of the individual on waking.

Physicians who have considered the question lie down an entirely different rule. They advise that five minutes should be devoted to the business of waking up, and that hurry should be avoided. The act of springing from bed is bad, because it accelerates the action of the heart suddenly, after the period of repose, and this in turn excites the brain, with the consequence that the individual becomes unbalanced, and remains in an unbalanced condition for hours, possibly for the rest of the day.

ASLEEP AT WHEEL, 20-DAY SENTENCE

Cleveland, Sept. 7.—Driving his car while asleep cost John Feicht twenty sleepless days in jail.

A motorcycle patrolman, attracted by the erratic progress of his automobile, drew alongside the car and found Feicht sound asleep at the wheel, he testified. Feicht was awakened and driven to the police station.

"You can sleep in jail for twenty days and pay $25 fine and costs," said Judge Selzer.

NEW STATE RECORD IN AUTO REGISTRATIONS

The Massachusetts Highway Commission in August registered 17,937 pleasure cars and 1,313 auto trucks, compared with August, 1921, registrations of 13,383 and 1,411 respectively. The nine months' total for the fiscal year to date is thereby brought up to 345,053 passenger cars and 61,297 commercial, against 1921 aggregates of 279,720 and 51,231 respectively.

From automobile foes of various sorts the Commonwealth collected $301,802 during August, against $241,340 in the same month last year, while the nine months' total is augmented to $5,234,301, compared with receipts in the same 1921 period of $4,377,625.

With three months' registration to come before the close of the fiscal year, the current nine months' total overtops the 1921 aggregate for twelve months of 389,732 pleasure cars and commercial trucks by over 13 per cent.

GUILFORD 1 DOWN TO SWEETSER AT 18TH HOLE IN TITLE GOLF

from Guilford by getting the conventional four, while Jones didn't reach with his second, and was well away from the hole when he did get on. They halved the third, mostly because the champion laid the youngster a partial stymie, after playing a bit crudely.

GUILFORD TIES IT UP.

Guilford tied the match at the fourth, where the other Jesse missed a somewhat soft putt, but a six on the next one put the Woodlander back in the ruck again. The next three were halved, and at the ninth Guilford, who was beginning to clout the ball normally, was on in two and down in as many more and the match was all square. Their cards out:

Guilford..... 5 5 5 5 5 4 4 4 4—40
Sweetser..... 5 4 5 4 5 4 4 4 5—40

McPhail and Jones started out by halving the first five holes, neither one of them playing any sensational golf. Both missed a few long putts, but on the whole the play was as even as possible.

JONES TAKES LEAD.

The Atlanta youngster went ahead at the sixth. Both hit good tee shots here, and were on with their seconds, about twenty feet from the flag. McPhail putted and rolled to the right, stopping three feet from the cup. Jones hit a ball that was dead, but it stopped six inches shy, almost a stymie. McPhail was a trifle too careful and trickled past the edge, thereby losing the hole.

Norfolk came back into the race at the seventh, though. McPhail's iron was on fifteen feet from glory. Jones was off the green on the down slope to the left and his chip was shy. He was over with his approach putt and conceded the hole when Billy rolled his just past the lip and halted two feet away.

PRODIGIOUS PUTTS.

They played the eighth finely, both dropping long high seconds on and then missing prodigious putts by less than a whisper.

Bobby went out-again at the ninth when the pair were just short of the green in two, with Jones downhill shots failing them. McPhail used a mashie and chipped ten feet past the pin, while Jones pulled out his putter and dribbled the marble to within six inches of the cup. Mac made a good effort coming back, but was just off the line.

Their cards out:

McPhail .....5 4 5 4 5 5 5 4 5—39
Jones .....5 4 4 4 5 4 5 4 4—39

TOLLEY IN TROUBLE.

The Knepper-Tolley match was off to an even start when they made fives on the first, neither reaching with his second. The next hole saw Rudy playing sound golf, well on with his mashie, a dozen feet from the hole. Tolley hit a poor second, was just up on his third, and shy on his fourth. Then he called it a day there.

Knepper's second, after a sloppy tee shot, hit a tree on the third and the Englishman hadn't any trouble squaring the match. But he teed off into a bad lie on the fourth pushed his second into a trap and was one down again.

Cyril kept right on getting into bother. His fifth tee shot was hooked badly into the rough, and he tried to slice out with an iron, and carried over the green, right up against the house which parks thereabouts. He had to play his third left-handed, and showed he wasn't a Kirkwood by failing to reach.

They halved the sixth, and then Tolley dropped back another by failing to sink an easy putt on the next town. After that the pair paraded two holes in similar measure.

Their cards out:

Knepper..... 5 4 6 4 4 4 5 4 5—39
Tolley..... 5 5 5 5 4 4 4 5—44

EVANS IN MERRY BATTLE.

Evans and Godchaux had a merry battle from the go. Neither was what you could call sensational, Chick taking his lead at the third with a five, which was trio of the same for him. Not as good. He won the fifth when he was on in two and down in as many more, while the New Orleans iron hooked away from the green.

Godchaux paged a birdie at the sixth, however, putting his second well up and dropping a nifty tap. He squared the match at the next hole, getting the orthodox three, while the ex-champ took one more.

Evans went out at the eighth, with one of those birdies, dropping his putt after two fine shots. He also annexed the ninth, where both were over the green and on the bank with their seconds. The New Orleans hero chipped up well past the pin, and Chick laid his stony, which means less than nothing at all away from the opening.

Their cards out:

Evans..... 5 5 5 4 4 4 5 3 4—39
Godchaux..... 5 5 6 4 5 3 4 4 5—41

SWEETSER GAINS.

Guilford, after his splendid start on the way home, tripped himself at the thirteenth by missing a three-footer. Just before he had grabbed the long eleventh with a good five, and then twelfth with a par three. Sweetser was in trouble off the tee here, and never had a chance.

The New Yorker got one back at the fifteenth, which looked like a Guilford hole. Jesse hit the back of the cup with his third, after reaching in a pair, while Sweetser was short on his tap. But the Woodlander's ball Englished off the rim, and ran and it took him two more to get down.

Sweetser dropped his tee shot ten feet from the stick at the little sixteenth, and ran it down to square the match. They halved the next one, but the younger Jesse plucked another birdie out of the cage at the home hole and took the lead.

Both were on here in two, but Sweetser tucked in his difficult twenty-footer, and Guilford missed.

EVANS 4 UP.

The cards in:

Guilford,
4 5 3 5 5 5 3 4 4—38—40—78
Sweetser,
4 4 5 5 5 4 3 4 5—38—40—78

McPhail and Jones finished their morning round all even, while Evans came in four up on Godchaux.

Their cards in:

Jones,
3 5 3 5 4 5 4 5 4—38—39—77
Evans,

ENGLISHMAN FAILS.

Knepper came in, two up on Tolley, after the Englishman had staged an impressive rally, getting to within one of evening things up, after being four down. He won three straight holes, two of them by means of birdies.

After failing to touch the short twelfth, because his tee iron found a guarding trap, and his pitch out sailed serenely into the bog on the far end, Cyril picked up, conceding the hole. He had won the tenth and dropped the next one, because Knepper was under par.

Tolley's approach to the thirteenth was off line, and kicked up mud to the left of the green. His pitch rolled daintily into the cup.

Both sliced slightly with their seconds on the fourteenth, but Tolley's pitch halted eight feet from the cup, and he dropped it. One more birdie.

Knepper hooked at the next hole, and his iron through the trees failed to reach. Tolley was on in two but was stymied by Knepper's pitch. He putted around it, and almost curled in. Rudy missed his four footer for a half. They played the sixteenth and seventeenth in par figures, but Knepper became two up in closing the round by sinking a ten-footer for a dazzling three on the home green.

Their cards in:

Knepper .... 5 4 4 5 4 5 5 4 3—36
Tolley ..... 4 5 5 5 4 4 3 4 6—37

BOBBY'S PUTTER OFF.

Mainly because his putter refused to behave properly, Bobby Jones lost his early lead to Bill McPhail, and reported for lunch all even. He took three putts on four greens.

Starting home, Jones napped in a twenty-five-footer on the tenth for a three, and was two up. McPhail, however, got a birdie himself on the long eleventh, but was bunkered on the short twelfth, and lost the vantage back.

Three of those putts were unlucky for Robert in the thirteenth, and McPhail's par four took it. They swapped back immediately, though, when Bobby had a birdie on the next one.

Billy took the next pair in par figures, Jones being uncertain in his approaches and follow-ups. Then they halved the last two and had to begin all over again in the afternoon.

GIRLS "DUMB DORAS" NOW IN SHOW GAME

New York, Sept. 7.—Stage struck—George M. Cohan says girls don't get that way any more. Getting stage struck used to be a fatality feared in every family—used to drive the girls to the big city and their parents crazy—but present day girls don't fall for the foolights like they used to. They can't twinkle their toes like the 1900 model could either, but they're prettier, Cohan, producer and star of stage successes since 1905, thus soothed parental fears in an interview today.

"Girls aren't stage crazy any more," he said, resting the famous Cohan kicks atop his desk. "Girls sit down in the orchestra and idolize the star. They don't run home with throbbing pulse, dash their alarm clock in a bag and make for Broadway. The illusion of the stage is gone and with it much of its glamour and lure.

"Girls who want to be in the musical shows of the farces can't compare to the girls of fifteen years ago. They haven't any ambition any more. You should have seen the way the girls used to work and dance! They nearly danced their toes off. But today, today—today a director has to beat a step into them and they haven't any ambition at that. In the farces they can't act. They are a joke. They don't have the stock experience that is so good for actors.

"Success comes over night on Broadway. That's discouraging. A girl used to work very hard to get somewhere on the stage. Today she is acclaimed over night or it seems to her a useless struggle."

There were more than the usual number of actors out of work this year because the season is starting slowly, due to last year's many failures. As the producer said there were no country "gals" seeking the bright lights.

"Nope, the girls today aren't much at stepping. They are more beautiful than ever—they're healthier, brighter—but—but, much less willing to work. They seem to be too prosperous to have ambitions. Why, when I produced 'Little Johnny Jones' I used to pick just any thirty girl applicants, tell them the step I wanted and they knocked it off immediately, but today—I have to hire two or three stage directors and they can't even drill it into them."
